

GAME OF THRONES[®]

THE HANDBOOK

Welcome to the world of Chaos

Centuries before the play for the Iron Throne began, the continent of Westeros stood as a land of shifting seasons and ancient shadows. To the west lies the Great Sea, and across a treacherous stretch of water the vast lands of Essos rise, whispered about by sailors and sellswords alike. To the far south lie the warm isles and exotic ports that seem a world apart, yet every journey begins with a single step into the unknown.

From the frozen wastes beyond the colossal Wall in the far north to the sun-baked sands of Dorne, the breadth of Westeros is matched only by the depth of its mysteries. Long summers can bring bounty and celebration, but winters that last for years can strip life down to its bare bones, testing both flesh and spirit.

Here, mighty houses cling to power with steel and guile, bound by blood, oath, and betrayal. Old gods are whispered to walk again among dense forests, ancient kings' bones lie beneath forgotten barrows, and the distant threat of things that should not be stirred beneath eternal frost.

This is Westeros: a realm where honor may be a blade or a trap, where every lord and lowborn soul must choose their path and where fate can change on the turn of a coin or the flight of a dragon's wing.

On which side of history will you stand?

Welcome to the world of Chaos	2
The Map of Westeros	5
Character Creation	6
1. Home Regions & Sub-Cultures	7
- 1.1.1. The North	7
Subcultures of The North:	8
- 1.1.2. The Riverlands	9
Subcultures of The Riverlands:	10
- 1.1.3. The Iron Islands	11
Subcultures of The Iron Islands:	12
- 1.1.4. The Vale	13
Subcultures of The Vale:	14
- 1.1.5. The Westerlands	15
Subcultures of The Westerlands:	16
- 1.1.6. The Crownlands	17
Subcultures of The Crownlands:	18
- 1.1.7. The Stormlands	19
Subcultures of The Stormlands:	20
- 1.1.8. The Reach	21
Subcultures of The Reach:	22
- 1.1.9. Dorne	23
Subcultures of Dorne:	24
2. Classes	25
Warrior	25
Knight	29
Martial Archer	30
Brute	31
Mercenary	32
Survivalist	33
Hedge Knight	37
Strider	38
Outlaw	39
Priest	40
R'hollor (Red Priest)	43
The Seven (Septon)	44
Drowned God (Drowned Men)	45
Old Gods (Greenseer)	46
Envoy	47
Measter	50
Minstrel	51
Mechant	52
Diplomate	53

3. Feats	53
4. Writing a Backstory	53
5. Rolling for Skills	53
Abilities and Skills	54
1. Abilities	54
2. Skills	54
Systems	55
1. Combat Rolls	55
2. Health	55
3.2.1 Wounds:	55
3.2.2 System shock:	55
3. Attraction	55
4. Renown	56
5. Armor Class	56
6. Constitution	56
Apparel	57
1. Upkeep	57
2. Upgrade	57

The Map of Westeros

Character Creation

Are you ready to start your journey through Westeros? Great! To kick-off your journey, you will need a character. Grab a blanco charactersheet, which you can find in the attachments. Got it? Good! Now you can follow the steps in this chapter to complete your charactersheet. First off, it is important that you have an idea of the character you would like to play. A good start to gain some insight and inspiration is to read the following three core components of the character builder.

- Home-region

Westeros consists of Seven Kingdoms, from the sun-scorched lands of Dorne to the frozen forests and hills of the North. Your home-region shapes your character. It forms the entire perspective on the world for your character. It makes a big difference if you are raised on the Iron Islands or in the Vale. Each region comes with its own history, values, costumes and challenges. See Chapter 1.1 for the different regions you can choose from.

- Sub-Culture

Each Kingdom has different cultures. You can be a Northerner, but whether you grew up in White Harbor or on Bear Island makes all the difference. These sub-cultures can grant you different bonuses on top of your skills. See Chapter 1.1 for the different sub-cultures per region you can choose from.

- Class

Westeros is a dangerous realm, but you can overcome hardships in many ways. Were you trained to be an archer, shooting your problems with arrows, or do you ask the favour of old or new gods to bring down your enemies? Your class decides for a large part how you interact with the world and how you tackle your challenges. See Chapter 1.3 for the different classes that are available.

There is a lot of information you need to take in to hold your own in Westeros. Luckily there are playing cards for your region, class, feats and items you can add to your charactersheet that can serve as an easy reminder of all your chosen options during the game. These will be handed out to you by the GM after you created your character.

→ Open the following website twice after you read the rest of the Character Creation Section:

https://serjohnofthemoongate.github.io/asoifrng/character_manager.html

You can open a Character Sheet and a Character Inventory. Both can be saved as a Json file and loaded through uploading this Json file in the character manager page.

1. Home Regions & Sub-Cultures

- 1.1.1. The North

The North is the largest and most unforgiving region of Westeros, a vast sweep of pine forests, high plains, moorlands, and snow-capped mountains where winter can fall even in summer and snows can pile forty feet deep at the height of the cold season. Its lands stretch from the colossal ice of the Wall in the far north down to the swamps and bogs of the Neck in the south, and from the Sunset Sea in the west to the Shivering Sea in the east. Sparse villages and isolated holdfasts dot the landscape, with only one true city, White Harbor, breaking the endless wilderness, and the great Wolfswood forest looming near the center of the realm. Harsh climate and scarce bounty make life here unforgiving, but those who endure are strong of muscle and spirit, shaped by the wind, snow, and relentless seasons.

House Stark sits at the heart of the North in the ancient stronghold of Winterfell, a castle as old and weathered as the lands it rules. The North still bears the customs of the First Men, with the Old Gods of the Forest watched in quiet groves of weirwood and honor prized above all else. Staunch bannermen from houses such as Umber, Mormont, and Reed hold their own rugged lands, while clans like the crannogmen stalk the swamps and mountain folk roam the high passes. The Wall stands as the realm's greatest bulwark against threats from beyond, tended by the Night's Watch, and the ruins of Moat Cailin guard the only southern gate. Here, loyalty is hard won, vengeance runs deep, and every man and woman must choose their path between survival and glory.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Winter Cloak] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Snowshoes] - [5S 30C]

Weapons: Two-handed swords (unique property)

Winter is Coming:

You gain + 2 to attack rolls when fighting in the snow.

The Old Gods:

You are proficient with the Sense Skill and with the Prowess Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The North:

- Northmen:

Men of the North are descendants of the First Men. Although the influence of the Andals is slowly creeping Northward, the Northmen still retain the customs and manners of the old ways. Their life is harder, and so they are hardened by it, and the pleasures that in the south are considered noble are thought of as less worthy than the hunting and brawling that the Northmen love best.

By choosing this subculture you gain +1 on your Martial ability and + 1 on your Attunement ability.

- Harbormen:

Although White Harbor is the smallest city in the Seven Kingdoms, its wealth cannot be matched by any other settlement above the Neck. The city was built with the wealth that the Manderlys had brought with them after being exiled from the Reach. White Harbor has more in common with the fine castles and towers of the Reach than with the castles of the North. This reflects upon the fact that there are more knights and followers of the Faith of the Seven than in the rest of the North. Citizens of White Harbor are known for their trades and crafts, which they hold dear.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Stewardship ability and + 1 on your Learning ability

- Crannogmen:

Crannogmen of the Neck are swamp-dwellers who live on floating islands on which they raise their halls and hovels. A small sly people, they are quite secretive, preferring to keep to themselves. Some say the Crannogmen breathe water, have webbed hands and feet like frogs, and use poisons on their frog spears and their arrows. That last, it must be said, is true enough. Many invading armies have perished to the poisons and guerilla-like tactics of the Crannogmen.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your Intrigue ability

- 1.1.2. The Riverlands

The Riverlands sit in the very heart of Westeros, a land shaped by countless waterways that carve fertile plains, rolling hills, and tangled forests between distant mountain shadows. This is the realm of the Trident, where three great forks of river meet and spread life and war through every valley. Towns like Fairmarket, Maidenpool, and Lord Harroway's Town stand beside the slow, winding waters, while great fortresses like Riverrun, Harrenhal, The Twins, and Seagard watch over crossroads and fords with equal vigilance. The rivers themselves are the lifeblood of trade and hunger alike, carrying grain and fish to distant markets yet also offering no natural bulwark against an invading host, leaving the Riverlands exposed to the ambitions of every neighbor.

The people of these lands are as unpredictable as the waters they depend on: a mix of hardy warriors in mail and leather, peaceful fisherfolk hauling in the season's catch, and devout smallfolk tending fields rich with grain and vine. Their lords are known across Westeros as quarrelsome, ever ready to argue over borders, rights, or insult, and this fractious nature has made the Riverlands a crossroads of politics as much as geography. Once ruled by petty river kings of aged houses and later unified under House Tully of Riverrun, the region has seen countless conflicts, from ancient ages through the Targaryen conquest and the wars that followed, each leaving scars on land and people. Noble bastards here take the name Rivers, and every lord's hall holds whispers of old feuds and newer grudges, making this central realm ripe for both betrayal and uneasy alliances.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Fishing Tackle] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Fish Trap] - [1G 3S 25C]

Weapons: Heavy Crossbow (unique property)

The Blackfish:

You gain the ability to swim.

Caught in the Middle:

You are proficient with the Strategy Skill and with the Negotiation Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The Riverlands:

- Forkmen:

No other folk in Westeros has seen so many battles, nor so many petty kings and royal houses rise and fall as the Rivermen. The causes of this are clear. Rich and fertile, the riverlands border on every other realm in the Seven Kingdoms save Dorne, yet have few natural boundaries to deter invasion.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your Diplomacy ability.

- Blackwood Riverlanders:

The Blackwood Vale is a broad valley North of the Red Fork and West of the Blue Fork. With its heavily forested landscape, ancient hills and streams and sacred groves, this is a place in the Riverlands where the old gods still hold some power. The Blackwoods, descendents from the First Men, are the ruling house and rule the Blackwood Vale from Raventree Hall. Here, the last remaining Weirwood below the Neck still stands firm.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Martial ability and + 1 on your Attunement ability.

- 1.1.3. The Iron Islands

The Iron Islands lie like broken, wind-scoured teeth off the western coast of Westeros, a harsh archipelago of jagged rock, cold waters, and thin soil that yields barely enough for goats and hardy crops. Here the sea is lord, darker and colder than elsewhere, and sailors are born before they walk. Salt and iron shape everything: the smell of brine in the air, the clang of hammer on steel in the forges, the hollow roar of gulls over grey waves. There are few great ports, but many storm-tossed harbors where longships are built for speed and war. From Pyke, the seat of House Greyjoy, to the smaller holds on bleak isles like Great Wyk and Harlaw, the Ironborn make their living on the water, their lookouts ever scanning the horizon for gulls returning from distant shores.

The Ironborn themselves prize strength, daring, and the bloody glory of raid and reaving, all in service to the Drowned God, whom they honor in rites both savage and solemn. To live by the Old Way is to take what you need from the weak, to row with the tide, and to die embraced by the sea. Kingsmoots are called when leadership is contested, the salt kings chosen by those bold enough to claim the kraken's throne. Many resist the reach of the Iron Throne, seeing any master as a chain around their necks, and their feuds with mainland lords are as likely to boil into fire as to simmer into uneasy peace. For an outsider, the Iron Islands are a danger and mystery: a place where oaths are kept as tightly as a cutlass in hand, and the sea never forgets a debt.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Grappling Hook] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Stormlantern] - [3S 20C]

Weapons: Battleaxe (unique property)

From salt and sea:

You are able to captain a ship, you are proficient.

We do not Sow:

You are proficient with the Looting Skill and with the Intimidation Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The Iron Islands:

• Ironborn:

Some say that the Iron Islands are named for the ore that is found there in such abundance, but the ironborn themselves insist that the name derives from their nature, for they are a hard people, as unbending as their god, the Drowned God. According to their faith, the Ironborn are a race apart from the common run of mankind. However poor these men may be on land, upon the sea they are their own masters.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Martial ability and + 1 on your Stewardship ability.

• Greenborn:

Despised by their fellow islanders, the Greenborn are a minority on the Iron Islands who choose to live by the norms and standards of the mainland rather than by the old ways of the Iron Islands. They follow the Faith of the Seven, and Greenborn lords employ maesters from the citadel, which are distrusted by the Ironborn.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Learning ability and + 1 on your Diplomacy ability.

- 1.1.4. The Vale

The Vale of Arryn is a realm hemmed in by sky-high mountains and clinging crags where winter's chill lingers long after it has left the lowlands. Far below the jagged peaks lies a land of fertile valleys, green pastures, and winding rivers that give life to orchard and field alike. Few roads lead into the Vale and fewer still are passable when snow blocks the passes, making isolation as much a shield as any army. At the heart of this land stands the Eyrie, a castle built upon near-vertical stone, its towers and walls seeming to grow out of the mountain itself. From those heights the lords and knights of the Vale look down upon the world with the confidence of those who know their walls are nearly impregnable.

Inhabitants of the Vale prize honor, dignity, and faith above all, their lives shaped by the Faith of the Seven and the enduring code of knighthood that accompanies it. The knights of the Vale, cloaked in skies-blue and white, are celebrated across Westeros for their purity of steel and unbending resolve in battle, though some see their lofty manners as arrogance born of isolation. Houses like Arryn, Royce, and Tollett hold fast to ancient oaths, and tournaments in the Vale are spectacles of skill and pageantry that test arms and wills alike. Though their lands are peaceful most seasons, the harshness of the surrounding mountains and the vigilance of their sentinels ensure that threats from without find little easy passage, leaving the Vale to grow strong in its traditions while watching the storms of the wider realm from its high perches.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Pytons] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Small Hamer] - [1G 6S 35C]

Weapons: Lances (unique property)

The High Ground:

When you are in combat in a mountain environment you gain +2 on your Armor Class

Knights of Valor:

You are proficient in the Prowess Skill and with the History Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The Vale:

• Valemen:

The Vale of Arryn is a long, wide, fertile valley entirely ringed by the great grey-green peaks of the mighty Mountains of the Moon - and it is as rich as it is beautiful.

The men of the Vale will tell you that the Vale is impregnable, for its position makes it all but impossible to assault.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on Diplomacy and + 1 on Martial.

• Sistermen:

‘Rather a Pirate than a wolf for a neighbor’. With this motto King Mathos Arryn set sail for the Three Sisters to rid them of the Northmen. After a thousand years of conflict with the Starks of Winterfell, the Arryns won the war and the Sisters swore fealty to the Vale. Today the three islands, Longsister, Sweetsister and Littlesister are a refuge for sailors, traders and smugglers. Their people are a reclusive bunch and some even say that they are descendants from old beings from beneath the waves.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Stewardship ability and + 1 on your Intrigue ability.

• Fingermen:

It was in the Fingers where the Andals first made landfall during their conquest of the Vale and ultimately of most of Westeros. The lands of the Fingers consist of four long, wind scoured, rocky and poor peninsulas jutting into the Narrow Sea. Although they lack good farmland or any large towns, they have an abundance of natural harbors. A fisherman or a trader holds as much influence as a petty lord in this region.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your Stewardship ability.

- 1.1.5. The Westerlands

The Westerlands rise rugged and stony along the western edge of Westeros, a land of low mountains, rolling hills, fertile fields, and broadleaf forests that meet the churning waters of the Sunset Sea. Once an independent realm known as the Kingdom of the Rock, this land has long been ruled from the impregnable fortress of Casterly Rock, carved into a massive rocky headland above the sea. The region boasts the largest settlements like Lannisport, a walled port city where roads to the east and south meet the sea, and a network of smaller castles and keeps that watch over valleys and passes. Bastards born in the Westerlands take the name Hill, and all who hail from these western hills are called Westermen, known for their stubborn determination and loyalty to their own.

The true wealth of the Westerlands is buried deep beneath its soil, in veins of gold and silver that have made House Lannister and their bannermen among the richest and best-equipped in all of Westeros. These metals fuel everything from gleaming armor to forged blades, and the coffers of Casterly Rock overflow with coin that buys influence as easily as it buys swords. Though smaller in size than many other regions, the strength of the Westerlands lies in its riches, its well-armed levies, and the strategic power of its fortifications such as the Golden Tooth, which guards the pass into the Riverlands. With wealth comes ambition and ancient grudges carved into stone almost as deep as the mines themselves, making the Westerlands a land where gold and steel both determine fate.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Empty Ledger] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Signed Ring] - [2G 3S 15C]

Weapons: Longbows (unique property)

Rains of Castamere:

You have advantage on persuasion combat roles against people with a lower renown.

Fortune Builder:

You are proficient in the Haggling skill and with the Negotiation Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The Westerlands:

• Westermen:

The Westermen of the Westerlands are a wealthy people, shaped by rugged land and rich mines rather than fertile fields. Their culture prizes power, order and reputation, viewing honor as a matter of credibility and debts rather than sentiment. Westermen are disciplined, decisive and have absolute loyalty to their liege, producing a society that is politically stable and feared across Westeros.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Stewardship ability and + 1 on your Diplomacy ability.

• Fair Islers:

Fair Isle and the coast bordering the Sunset Sea are strategically vital for defending the coast of the Westerlands against Ironborn invasions. Because of this position, the longships of house Farman have made their mark upon the Sunset Sea for centuries. On Fair Isle gold and politics matter less than ships, walls and the readiness to repel the next raid.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your Martial ability.

- 1.1.6. The Crownlands

The Crownlands form the political and administrative heart of Westeros, a patchwork of lands once ruled by petty kings and river lords before being bound together by Aegon the Conqueror and his dragons. Stretching along the shores of Blackwater Bay, the region includes fertile fields, rolling hills, woodlands, and key strongholds such as Dragonstone, Rosby, Stokeworth, and Duskendale. Unlike most regions, the Crownlands exist not to project a single cultural identity, but to serve the Iron Throne itself, their loyalties tied directly to royal authority rather than ancient regional pride. Roads, messengers, and armies all converge here, making the land both prosperous and perpetually vulnerable to unrest.

At the center of it all stands King's Landing, the largest city in the Seven Kingdoms and the seat of royal power. Its sprawling harbor is crowded with merchant cogs, war galleys, and foreign ships from across the Narrow Sea, bringing goods, gold, and whispers from distant lands. Nearly every craft known in Westeros is practiced within its walls, from smithing and shipbuilding to alchemy and finance, while guilds, merchants, and tax collectors ensure that wealth flows steadily toward the Red Keep. Yet beneath the surface of trade and pageantry lies tension: crowded streets, stark divides between rich and poor, and politics sharper than any blade. In the Crownlands, power is never far away, and neither is the cost of standing too close to it.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Perfume] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Fine Cape] - [1G 7S 35C]

Weapons: Halberds (unique property)

Pit of Snakes:

You can not be Surprised.

Chaos is a ladder:

You are proficient with the Deception Skill and with the Religion Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The Crownlands:

- Crownlanders:

When King Aegon the Conqueror landed on the shores of the Blackwater Bay, he constructed the foundations of what would become King's Landing, the capital of Westeros. Though it is a crowded and stinking place, it is also the seat of the ruling regent of Westeros, and home to monuments like the Great Sept of Baelor and the Dragonpit. From King's Landing, the surrounding Crownlands are directly controlled by the regent. A crownman must therefore be pragmatic, politically minded and pay attention to courtly intrigue. Because if you have a good nose, you might be able to smell the treachery.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your intrigue ability.

- Cracklows:

Cracklaw point is a rugged forested peninsula in the Northern Crownlands, jutting out into the Narrow Sea. It is a land of steep hills, bogs and scattered ruins of ancient strongholds. The people of Cracklaw point are regarded by outsiders as half-wild and fiercely independent. They use their knowledge of the difficult terrain to repel invaders and retreat into caves when necessary. Deep distrust of strangers and persistent blood feuds are common in the region.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Martial ability and +1 on your Diplomacy ability.

- Westerosi Valyrian:

When Aegon the Conqueror first landed on the shores of Westeros, he was not the only descendant from ancient Valyria to do so. At his side were the noble houses of Velaryon and Celtigar and many petty lords, who had fled the Doom of Valyria. They settled on the islands and the shores of the Blackwater Bay. Here, their Valyrian heritage and ambition intertwined with Westerosi political and social structures. Although they no longer worship the ancient Dragongods of old Valyria, they still hold a certain mystique and are regarded by 'common' Westerosi as noble and attractive.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Learning ability and + 1 on your Attunement ability.

- 1.1.7. The Stormlands

The Stormlands take their name from the ferocious, sea-born tempests that sweep in from the Summer Sea each autumn, lashing cliffs, forests, and farmlands alike with rain and wind. Rugged hills and deep woods dominate the interior, while the coastline is marked by rocky headlands and hidden coves where the roar of breakers never truly ceases. Unlike the larger and more populous regions of Westeros, the Stormlands are sparsely settled, dotted with moss-covered cottages and isolated keeps where hardy folk carve out their lives against the weather and the land. Roads wind through tangled forests and across misty moors, and travel here can test even seasoned wayfarers when storms rise without warning.

The people of the Stormlands reflect the wild nature of their home: fierce in battle, resolute at sea, and quick to speak their minds in hearth halls and council chambers alike. House Baratheon rules from Storm's End, a massive fortress said to withstand any gale, its walls weathered like the bones of the land. From there, bannermen such as Dondarrion, Tarth, and Swann muster levies of stout men and sailors raised on salt air and the promise of glory in war or raid. Though their fields yield modest crops and their forests give generous timber, it is the strength of arms and the courage of hearts that define the Stormlanders. In this realm, storms are as much a part of life as birth and death, forging warriors and mariners alike in salt and thunder.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Wool Raincoat] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Shovel] - [5S 30C]

Weapons: All two-handed weapons
(unique property)

Stubborn Defenders:

You gain a +2 on Attack Rolls when you have less than half your Hit Points

Storm Lords:

You are proficient with the Intimidation Skill and with the Prowess Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The Stormlands:

- Stormlander:

Even at their greatest extent, the realms of the Dundarrons and their successors have always been thinly populated when compared to the surrounding kingdoms. Those who choose to make their homes in the stormlands are a special breed. The people of the Stormlands are like unto their weather, it has oft been said: tumultuous, violent, implacable and unpredictable.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Martial ability and + 1 on your Diplomacy ability.

- Marcher:

The fiercest fighters in the Stormlands, and perhaps in all of Westeros, are undoubtedly the men of the Marches, who are said to be born with sword in hand and often boast of learning to fight even before they learn to walk. In the sight of the Red Mountains, the great castles of the Marcher lords stand, built to guard the borders of the Stormlands against Dornish incursions from the south and the steel-clad knights of the Reach from the west. The Marcher lords are duly proud of their history as key defenders of the realm of the Storm Kings, and many are the ballads and tales of their valor.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your martial ability.

- 1.1.8. The Reach

The Reach is the breadbasket of Westeros, a wide and fertile land of rolling plains, gentle hills, orchards heavy with fruit, and fields that feed the realm. From the broad river valleys to the flowering vineyards on gentle slopes, this region yields a bounty rare in the Seven Kingdoms: apples and pears, melons and peaches, bushels of grain and groves of olives and nuts. Its seashores are dotted with fertile marshlands and sandy beaches, and offshore lies The Arbor, whose sun-kissed vines produce some of the richest wines known, from deep reds to amber-hued vintages savored from Oldtown to King's Landing. Roads here are wide and well-kept, markets flourish in towns like Ashford, Oldtown, and Highgarden, and caravans laden with produce and casks travel far beyond the Reach's borders.

But abundance has shaped more than fields and orchards: it has fostered a culture of pageantry, courtesy, and martial pride. The Reach is considered the home of chivalry in Westeros, where tournaments are grand affairs and the rules of tilt and melee are followed with scrupulous care. Knights from Houses such as Tyrell, Tarly, Florent, and Hightower train from youth in lance and blade, and their banners are a common sight in lists and lists of champions. Yet beneath the bright banners and merry feasts lie ambitions as deep as fertile soil, and old rivalries can flare as quickly as fires in dry grass. In the Reach, hospitality and honor walk hand in hand with politics and power, and every harvest festival or tourney can be the stage for glory or for machination.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Set of Cyvasse] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Bottle of Arbor Gold] - [2G 2S 15C]

Weapons: Longswords (unique property)

Tourney Knights:

You gain a +2 on Attack Roles when in mounted combat

The Ruling Regent:

You are proficient with the Negotiation Skill and with the Prowess Skill

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of The Reach:

● Reachmen:

In the days before the Conquest, the Kings of the Reach and their queens presided over tourneys of love and beauty, where the greatest knights of the Reach competed for the love of the fairest maids not only with feats of arms, but with song, poetry and demonstrations of virtue, piety and chaste devotion. These traditions are still remembered by the Reachmen, who uphold all that is best in knighthood and chivalry.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your Diplomacy ability.

● Honeywiner:

Along the banks of the Honeywine river, lies the city of Oldtown. The city is the equal of King's Landing in size, and it is superior in all other respects, being vastly older and more beautiful, with its cobbled streets, ornate guildhalls, stone houses, and three great monuments: The Starry Sept of the Faith, the Citadel of the Maesters and the mighty Hightower, with its great beacon, the tallest tower in all the known world. It is a seat of learning, a center of music, culture and all the arts, bright and dark.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Learning ability and + 1 on your Attunement ability.

● Vinemen:

Beyond the Redwine Strait lies the Arbor, the golden island famed for wine and sunshine. Its people are refined, socially polished and accustomed to foreign merchants and distant ports. On the Arbor commerce and naval power intersect, and influence is poured as often from a wine cask as it is enforced by a sword.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your Stewardship ability.

- 1.1.9. Dorne

Dorne lies at the southern edge of Westeros, a land of blazing sun, red mountains, dry deserts, and fertile river valleys where water still flows despite the heat. Much of the region is harsh and unforgiving, with rocky highlands and vast sands broken only by oases and winding rivers like the Greenblood, yet along its coasts and in sheltered valleys, citrus groves, olives, and spices flourish. The Red Mountains form a natural barrier between Dorne and the rest of the realm, helping to preserve its independence and shaping a land that looks as much toward the Narrow Sea and the Summer Sea as it does toward the Seven Kingdoms. Castles here are often built low and strong against the heat, and travel through the interior can be as deadly as any battlefield.

Dorne's people are as distinct as its land. Unbowed, unbent, and unbroken, they were never conquered by Aegon the Conqueror, instead joining the realm generations later through marriage and diplomacy. This independence allowed Dornish customs to endure, including equal inheritance for women and men, open attitudes toward love, and a culture that values wit and passion as much as steel. Ruled from Sunspear by House Martell, Dorne is home to several distinct peoples: salty Dornish along the coasts, sandy Dornish of the deserts, and stony Dornish of the mountains. Their warriors favor speed, cunning, and poisoned blades over heavy armor, and their loyalty runs deep once earned. In Dorne, memory is long, insults are not forgotten, and patience is often the deadliest weapon of all.

Equipment & Proficiency:

Starting Gear: [Small Backpack] - [5 Rations] - [Desert Hood] - [10ft Rope] - [Tinder Box] - [Waterskin] - [Bedroll] - [Dew Trap] - [1G 3S 15C]

Weapons: Martial Melee

The Viper:

You are proficient with a poisoner's kit.

The Dornish Plot:

You are proficient with the Forgery Skill and with the Strategy Skill.

Have you decided what your rough place of origin is? Excellent! Now we can move on to Subcultures. Every Kingdom is enormous in size, therefore there are quite some different people within each Kingdom. You will learn different abilities when you grow in the city instead of on a farm. Each Subculture will provide you with different bonuses on your ability scores. And of course be of importance when playing and writing your character!

Subcultures of Dorne:

- Salt-Dornish:

The Salt-Dornish live around the river Greenblood and the coasts of Dorne. They are regarded as direct descendants of the Rhoynar who arrived from Essos with Queen Nymeria and her Ten-Thousand ships. When they came ashore, most Rhoynar preferred to remain close to the water that had been their home for so long, even after Nymeria burned their ships. Unlike the other Dornish, they prize fishing, raiding and seafaring, making them skilled navigators and sailors.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your Stewardship ability.

- Sand-Dornish:

The Sand-Dornish dwell in the desert and river valleys, and are used to the harsh way of life in the desert and still honor their Rhoynish traditions. The rivers of Dorne are barren when compared to the Mander or the Trident, thus men live in a different fashion here. Moving from dessert oasis to dessert oasis, crossing the sands with the aid of what wells they know of in the midst of the wastes. It is the Sand-Dornish who are the chief breeders of the famed sand steeds, considered the most beautiful horses in the Seven Kingdoms.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 1 on your Intrigue ability and + 1 on your Martial ability.

- Stone-Dornish:

The Stone-Dornish are mountain folk, fair of hair and skin, mostly descended from the First Men and the Andals. They have the most in common with those north of the mountains and are the least touched by Rhoynish custom. This doesn't make them close allies with the Marcher lords or the Lords of the Reach. On the contrary, having for a thousand years warred with the Reach and the stormlands. If the ballads tell of brave skirmishes with cruel Dornishmen, this is largely to do with the reputation of the Stone-Dornish.

By choosing this subculture you gain + 2 on your martial ability.

2. Classes

Life in Westeros is hard and unforgiving, therefore it is of utmost importance that you know how to survive. You either play the Game of Thrones or you die. How you will survive depends largely on your skill set. Everyone is taught and trained in a different field, if you are good enough in your expertise, you might be able to survive. Some will seek their helm in ancient books while others hack away with the largest weapon they can find. Or would you rather climb to power from the shadows? The choice is up to you.

Warrior

Throughout the Seven Kingdoms and the Free Cities there is an abundance of warriors. Some by choice, to gain prestige and renown by participating in tourneys and leading armies. But most by having no other choice, common men fighting beneath banners of lords they never met. Whatever the reason, steel and arrows is the most straightforward way to deal with the cruelties of the world. Despite the reason, bravery is a virtue in the Seven Kingdoms. If you excel on the battlefield or in tourneys, you might find yourself climbing society at a rapid pace.

The art of war is more complex than hacking each other with swords. There are those who focus on laying out the battle strategies, granting advantages to their armies. Others hone their expertise with a rapier and fight like the waterdancers from Bravos. In the Westerlands they have perfected long distance battles with their mighty longbows. And even a pyromancer could wreak havoc on the battlefield, engulfing friend and foe in bright flames.

Creating a Warrior

As you build your warrior, think about two related elements of your character's background: Where did you get your combat training, and what set you apart from the common soldiers around you? Were you particularly ruthless in the brutal wars of Westeros? Did you receive guidance from a master-at-arms, perhaps because of your unwavering dedication? What drove you to this training in the first place? A threat to your House, a blood oath of vengeance, or a need to prove your worth to a lord might all have been factors.

You might have enjoyed formal training in a lord's garrison or with a bannerman's household guard. Perhaps you trained in the yards of a great castle, learning the art of war, tactics, and the history of legendary battles. Or you might be self-taught, rough around the edges but battle-tested. Did you take up the sword to escape the meager life of a smallfolk farmer, or are you upholding your House's martial tradition? Where did you acquire your weapons and armor? They might have been issued by your liege lord or passed down through generations of your family, or perhaps you labored for years to afford them. Your armaments are now among your most important possessions, the only things that stand between you and a cold grave in the harsh lands of the Seven Kingdoms.

Warrior Progress Table

	Renown Point	Proficiency Bonus	Feature
1	50	+2	Fighting Style, Adrenaline Rush, Subclass Feature
2	110	+2	Action Surge
3	180	+2	Subclass Feature
4	260	+2	Feat
5	355	+3	Extra Attack (1)
6	465	+3	Ability Score Improvement
7	590	+3	Subclass Feature
8	735	+3	Feat
9	900	+4	Additional Fightingstyle
10	1.085	+4	Subclass Feature
11	1.295	+4	Extra Attack (2)
12	1.530	+4	Ability Score Improvement
13	1.790	+5	Remarkable Warrior
14	2.080	+5	Feat
15	2.400	+5	Subclass Feature
16	2.750	+5	Ability Score Improvement
17	3.135	+6	Action Surge Extra (2)
18	3.555	+6	Ability Score Improvement
19	4.015	+6	Extra Attack (3)

Class Features

Hit Points

Hit Dice: 1d12 per warrior level

Hit Points at 1st Level: 10 + your Constitution modifier

Hit Points at Higher Levels: 1d12 + your Constitution modifier per warrior level after 1st

Proficiencies

Armor:	All armor, shields
Weapons:	Simple weapons (ranged + melee), martial weapons (ranged + melee)
Tools:	Weapon or Fletching Kit
Saving Throws:	Martial, Diplomacy
Skills:	Choose two skills from Prowess, Strategy, Looting, Dexterity, Religion, Medicine, Perception, and Negotiation

Starting Gear:

All starting gear have the 'Poor' condition

Armor: Mail Boots - Mail Shirt

Weapons: Option A: Simple melee weapon and Shield or Martial Melee weapon
Option B: Two throwing weapons or a Martial ranged weapon (with 20 ammo)

Fighting Style: Level 1 & 9

You adopt a particular style of fighting as your specialty. Choose one of the following options. You can't take a Fighting Style option more than once, even if you later get to choose again.

- Archery
You gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls you make with ranged weapons.
- Defense
While you are wearing armor, you gain a +1 bonus to AC.
- Dueling
When you are wielding a melee weapon in one hand and no other weapons, you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with that weapon.
- Great Weapon Fighting
When you roll a 1 or 2 on a damage die for an attack you make with a melee weapon that you are wielding with two hands, you can reroll the die and must use the new roll, even if the new roll is a 1 or a 2. The weapon must have the two-handed or versatile property for you to gain this benefit.
- Protection

When a creature you can see attacks a target other than you that is within 5 feet of you, you can use your reaction to impose disadvantage on the attack roll. You must be wielding a shield.

- Two-Weapon Fighting

When you engage in two-weapon fighting, you can add your ability modifier to the damage of the second attack.

Adrenaline Rush: Level 1

You have a limited well of stamina that you can draw on to protect yourself from harm. On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your warrior level. Once you use this feature, you must finish a short or long rest before you can use it again.

Action Surge: Level 2 & 17

Starting at 2nd level, you can push yourself beyond your normal limits for a moment. On your turn, you can take one additional action.

Once you use this feature, you must finish a short or long rest before you can use it again. Starting at 17th level, you can use it twice before a rest, but only once on the same turn.

Warrior Subclass: Level 1, 3, 7, 10 & 15

At the 1st level, you choose an archetype that you strive to emulate in your combat styles and techniques. Choose Knight, Brute, Archer or Mercenary, all detailed at the end of the class description. The archetype you choose grants you features at 1st level and again at 3th, 7th, 10th and 15th.

Ability Score Improvement: Level 6, 12, 16 & 18

When you reach 6th level, and again at 12th, 16th, and 18th level, you can increase one ability score of your choice by 2, or you can increase two ability scores of your choice by 1. As normal, you can't increase an ability score above 20 using this feature.

Extra Attack: Level 5, 11 & 18

Beginning at 5th level, you can attack twice, instead of once, whenever you take the Attack action on your turn.

The number of attacks increases to three when you reach 11th level in this class and to four when you reach 18th level in this class.

Remarkable Warrior: Level 13

Beginning at level 13th you are a well-rounded warrior. You can add half your proficiency modifier to two of the three Martial skills, which are Prowess, Strategy and Dexterity. You can round up.

Knight:

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

Knightly Conduct: Level 1

Your Reputation directly influences how others perceive your knightly conduct:

- Famed Reputation (+1 to +10): Your honorable deeds are well-known throughout the realm. You gain a bonus to Persuasion rolls equal to half your Famed Reputation score (rounded down). At Famed +6, for example, you gain +3 to Persuasion as people are naturally inclined to trust and follow someone of such noble character.
- Notorious Reputation (-1 to -10): Your fearsome reputation precedes you, and your mere presence can cow others into submission. You gain a bonus to Intimidation rolls equal to half your Notorious Reputation score (rounded down, as a positive number). At Notorious -6, for example, you gain +3 to Intimidation as people know you're capable of terrible things.

A Good Horse Never Dies: Level 3

Starting at 3rd level, you gain proficiency in mounted combat. Mounting or dismounting a horse costs you a bonus action and you have advantage on Martial saving throws made to avoid falling off your mount. While being mounted in combat your damage output increases significantly since the impact of your blows are that much harder through the forwards motion of your steed. If you land a blow on a creature while you are mounted you can roll the damage dice of your weapon twice.

In addition, you gain a +2 on your combat rolls while participating in a jousting tournament.

Commanding Presence: Level 7 & 12

At level 7 you are a formidable knight on the battlefield and you learn 3 battle maneuvers. These are special moves you can use in combat, you can use one maneuver per attack action. You gain 4 Valor Dice

Valor Dice. You have four Valor dice, which are d8s. A Valor die is expended when you use it. You regain all of your expended superiority dice when you finish a short or long rest. You gain another Valor die at 12th level.

Saving Throws. Some of your maneuvers require your target to make a saving throw to resist the maneuver's effects. The saving throw DC is calculated as follows:

Maneuver save DC = 8 + your proficiency bonus + your Prowess or Dexterity modifier (your choice)

Hold the Line: Level 10

At 10th level, you become a master of locking down your enemies. Creatures provoke an opportunity attack from you when they move 5 feet or more while within your reach, and if you hit a creature with an opportunity attack, the target's speed is reduced to 0 until the end of the current turn.

Superior Critical: Level 15

Starting at 15th level, your weapon attacks score a critical hit on an attack roll of 18–20.

Martial Archer:

Life Proficiencies: Reading

Unlimited Supply: Level 1

Starting at the first level, you gain proficiency with a fletching kit. You will gain a fletching kit and you are able to craft your own arrow or bolt supply. You will need to collect sticks, feathers and resin for hardened points. It takes a short rest to create 10 fletched arrows or bolts.

In addition, you have advantage on strategy checks involving archery.

Steady Hands: Level 3

Preparation is the key to a well aimed shot. You can use your bonus action to crouch and brace for your shot. If you take this bonus action your first shot on your next turn will gain a +2 on attack and damage rolls. But your enemies have advantage on melee attacks made on you, since you are considered to be prone.

Quickdraw: Level 7

Your reflexes are exceptional. You gain the following benefits from these reflexes. You are able to reload a heavy crossbow in the same manner you would a regular crossbow. Changing weapons takes a bonus action instead of an action. When someone makes a melee attack against you while you have your bow equipped you can use your reaction to attack with an off-hand light weapon.

Muscle Memory: Level 10

At 10th level, your archery muscles are well developed. No string is too tough for you. The range of your ranged weapons increases by 50%. If the range was 100 meters it is now 150 meters. In addition, you deal additional damage when making a targeted attack. The additional damage is based on the body part you are targeting.

- Head = 1d6 additional damage
- Leg = 1d8 additional damage
- Arm = 1d10 additional damage
- Torso = 1d12 additional damage

Superior Critical: Level 15

Starting at 15th level, your range attacks score a critical hit on an attack roll of 18–20.

Brute:

Life Proficiencies: Swimming

Battle Frenzy: Level 1 (3, 6, 12, 17)

When you sustain an injury for the first time in combat you can choose to enter a state of battle frenzy. Letting yourself be consumed by a primal bloodlust. While in this state you gain +2 to your armor class and you can add 1d4 to your damage rolls, this increases to 2d4 at level 6 and 3d4 at level 12.

Additionally, when in a state of Frenzy, the threshold for inflicting medium or critical wounds on your enemy is lowered by 2.

Once you have gone into a Frenzy the maximum number of times for your brute level, you must finish a long rest before you can Frenzy again. It ends when you don't attack or take damage in a round of combat.

You may Frenzy 2 times at 1st level, 3 at 3rd - 4 at 6th - 5 at 12th - and 6 at 17th.

Fearless Charge: Level 3

Your aggressive nature makes you devastating when closing distance. Starting at level 3, when you use the Dash action and move toward an enemy, you do not provoke opportunity attacks from that enemy or any enemies between you and your target. Additionally, the first melee attack you make after a Dash action gains advantage.

Intimidating Presence: Level 7

Beginning at 7th level, you can use your action to frighten someone with your menacing presence. When you do so, choose one creature that you can see within 30 feet of you. If the creature can see or hear you, it must succeed on an intimidation combat roll against you or be frightened of you until the end of your next turn. On subsequent turns, you can use your action to extend the duration of this effect on the frightened creature until the end of your next turn. This effect ends if the creature ends its turn out of line of sight or more than 60 feet away from you.

If the creature succeeds on its saving throw, you can't use this feature on that creature again for 24 hours.

Adrenaline fuelled: Level 10

Starting from level 10, when someone hits you with a targeted wounding strike. You are able to negate the severity of the wound by 1 level. From critical to medium, from medium to mild and you can shake off any mild wound completely and just only take the damage of that hit.

Superior Critical: Level 15

Starting at 15th level, your range attacks score a critical hit on an attack roll of 18–20.

Mercenary:

Life Proficiencies: Swimming

Spoils of War: Level 1, 6 & 13

Starting at level 1, you get better at finding valuables on bodies or in hiding places. When using the loot skill you can add an additional 1d4 to your rolls. This improves at level 6 to a 1D8 and at level 13 to a 1D10.

Loyalty is Bought: Level 3

Starting at Level 3, you know your way around the negotiation table. With your foul and cunning tactics you can impose disadvantage upon the opponent of a negotiation combat role. You can use this ability once per short rest.

When you are contracted by a new organisation or entity, you can make use of their blacksmithing facilities if available. You can improve two pieces of your current gear for free up to the Good condition or order one piece of new gear with a Decent quality.

In addition, while you are acting under contract you deal 1d4 additional damage per attack. This increases to 2d4 at level 9.

Half a Loaf is Better Than None: Level 7 & 12

At level 7 you learn that getting out of combat is better than dying in one. When you use the Shove Action. You can spend your bonus action to dash without taking an attack of opportunity from enemies within range. On the next 2 turns you can use the dash action as bonus action. You can use this ability once per short rest. This increases to two times per short rest at level 12.

Brothers in Arms: Level 10

After fighting shoulder to shoulder with your companions for years you can predict each other's moves perfectly. You gain advantage on attack rolls against another creature if at least one of your allies is within 5 feet of the target creature and your ally isn't incapacitated.

Superior Critical: Level 15

Starting at 15th level, your range attacks score a critical hit on an attack roll of 18-20.

Life in Westeros is hard and unforgiving, therefore it is of utmost importance that you know how to survive. You either play the Game of Thrones or you die. How you will survive depends largely on your skill set. Everyone is taught and trained in a different field, if you are good enough in your expertise, you might be able to survive. Some will seek their helm in ancient books while others hack away with the largest weapon they can find. Or would you rather climb to power from the shadows? The choice is up to you.

Survivalist

Throughout the Seven Kingdoms and the Free Cities danger is around every corner. Being able to hold your own is therefore extra important. There are those who made it their sole aim in life to survive. Each counting and relying on a different set of skills and moral code. One prefers to sustain themselves by roaming the vast nature and collecting everything Westeros has to offer along the way. Others depend on others to survive, only for them to steal and plunder all their collected resources from them. Luckily there are those who have better morals, however shaky these are. They survive by lending their sword to whoever lord or holdfast is in need of steel, in hope to gain some renown and more importantly. Gold.

The basics of being able to provide while being on the road is a life skill that is much needed and appreciated on the road. Often survivalists are able to offer their services to guide caravans that are about to undertake a long and perilous journey. Conversing with high-born lords and ladies while you provide and protect them is a great road to gain influence in the world and expand your network.

Creating a Survivalist

As you create your Survivalist, consider how you first learned to endure when others failed. Survivalists are not born of tourneys or knightly pageantry, they are shaped by hunger, cold, betrayal, and long roads with no promise of shelter at the end. Where did you learn the skills that now keep you alive? Was it in the deep forests of the North, along the scorched paths of Dorne, or on the broken roads left behind by marching armies?

What sets you apart from the countless smallfolk, sellswords, and wanderers who perish each year? Did you learn early that mercy can be a luxury, or did you cling to a personal code even when the world offered none in return? Perhaps you survived a famine, a siege, or a failed campaign that taught you hard lessons about trust and preparation. Maybe you were taken in by a seasoned guide, a hedge warrior, or a caravan master who showed you how to live off the land and off other people, when necessary.

Your training may have been informal but relentless. You might have learned to hunt, forage, and track game through untamed wilderness, or to read the signs of danger on the road: disturbed soil, broken branches, the silence of birds. Others learned survival among men rather than beasts, shadowing armies, scavenging battlefields, or guarding caravans in exchange for food, coin, and a place by the fire. Some Survivalists sell their blade to lords and holdfasts in need of protection, hoping to earn coin, favor, or a name that might one day open doors otherwise barred.

Survivalist Progress Table

	Renown Points	Proficiency Bonus	Feature
1	50	+2	Survival Instinct, Sharpest Tool , Subclass Feature
2	110	+2	Home Turf
3	180	+2	Subclass Feature
4	260	+2	Feat
5	355	+3	Extra Attack
6	465	+3	Ability Score Improvement, Survival Instinct [+1]
7	590	+3	Subclass Feature
8	735	+3	Feat
9	900	+4	Fighting Style
10	1.085	+4	Subclass Feature
11	1.295	+4	Wild Rover
12	1.530	+4	Ability Score Improvement
13	1.790	+5	Survival Instinct [+1], Home Turf [+1]
14	2.080	+5	Feat
15	2.400	+5	Subclass Feature
16	2.750	+5	Ability Score Improvement
17	3.135	+6	Wild Rover [+1]
18	3.555	+6	Ability Score Improvement
19	4.015	+6	Home Turf [+1]

Class Features

Hit Points

Hit Dice: 1d10 per survivalist level

Hit Points at 1st Level: 10 + your Constitution modifier

Hit Points at Higher Levels: 1d10 + your Constitution modifier per survivalist level after 1st

Proficiencies

Armor:	Light, medium, shields
Weapons:	Simple Melee and Ranged, Martial Ranged Weapons
Tools:	Tinder Box & Cooking Utensils
Saving Throws:	Stewardship, Martial
Skills:	Choose two skills from Prowess, Management, Looting, Dexterity, Sense, Stealth, Perception, and Negotiation

Starting Gear:

All starting gear have the 'Poor' condition

Armor: Padded Coif - Mail with Overcoat - standard set of worn Bundschuhe, peasant shoes

Weapons: First Pick: A longbow or a light crossbow (both with 20 ammo)
Second Pick: Two Simple melee weapons or one simple melee and a light wooden round shield +1

Survival Instinct: Level 1, 6 & 13

At first level, you gain the ability to survive in the wilderness. This comes with a specific set of skills unique to the survivors class. You have the option to track, hunt and forage. You use a D20+Proficiency + 1D4 to roll for these skills. This improves at level 6 to a 1D8 and at level 13 to a 1D10.

Sharpest Tool in the Shed: Level 1

Being dependent on your own skills and abilities you learn quickly how to use different toolsets. Starting at level 1 you may choose two additional toolsets besides the Tinder Box and Cooking Utensils to become proficient in. Choose from the following list: Weapon Tools, Fletching Kit, Medicine Kit, Herbalist Kit, Thieves Tools, Navigators Tools, Leatherworkers Tools & Tinker Tools.

Survivalist Subclass: Level 1, 3, 7, 10 & 15

At the 1st level, you choose an archetype that you strive to emulate in your combat styles and techniques. Choose Hedge Knight, Strider or Outlaw, all detailed at the end of the class description. The archetype you choose grants you features at 1st level and again at 3th, 7th, 10th and 15th.

Home Turf: Level 2, 13 & 19

You are particularly familiar with one type of natural environment and are adept at traveling and surviving in such regions. Choose one type of favored terrain: Snow, Coast, Desert, Forest, Grassland, Mountain, Swamp, Hills or Sea. You can pick additional terrain at level 13 and 19.

While traveling for an hour or more in your home turf, you gain the following benefits:

- Difficult terrain doesn't slow your group's travel.
- Your group can't become lost
- Even when you are engaged in another activity while traveling (such as foraging, navigating, or tracking), you remain alert to danger. Can't be surprised.
- If you are traveling alone, you can move stealthily at a normal pace.
- When you forage, you find twice as much food as you normally would.
- While tracking other creatures, you also learn their exact number, their sizes, and how long ago they passed through the area.

Extra Attack: Level 5

Beginning at 5th level, you can attack twice, instead of once, whenever you take the Attack action on your turn.

Ability Score Improvement: Level 6, 12, 16 & 18

When you reach 6th level, and again at 12th, 16th, and 18th level, you can increase one ability score of your choice by 2, or you can increase two ability scores of your choice by 1. As normal, you can't increase an ability score above 20 using this feature.

Fighting Style: Level 9

You adopt a particular style of fighting as your specialty. Choose one of the following options. You can't take a Fighting Style option more than once, even if you later get to choose again.

- Archery
You gain a +2 bonus to attack rolls you make with ranged weapons.
- Defense
While you are wearing armor, you gain a +1 bonus to AC.
- Dueling
When you are wielding a melee weapon in one hand and no other weapons, you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with that weapon.
- Great Weapon Fighting
When you roll a 1 or 2 on a damage die for an attack you make with a melee weapon that you are wielding with two hands, you can reroll the die and must use the new roll, even if the new roll is a 1 or a 2. The weapon must have the two-handed or versatile property for you to gain this benefit.
- Protection
When a creature you can see attacks a target other than you that is within 5 feet of you, you can use your reaction to impose disadvantage on the attack roll. You must be wielding a shield.
- Two-Weapon Fighting
When you engage in two-weapon fighting, you can add your ability modifier to the damage of the second attack.

Wild Rover: Level 11 & 17

Beginning at 9th level, you gain 5 meter extra moving speed. Your climbing and swimming speed become equal to your moving speed. This increases with 5 movement speed at level 17.

Hedge Knight:

Life Proficiencies: Swimming - Reading

Sleeping with One Eye Open: Level 1

At level 1 you learn how to keep your guard up. When setting up camp and taking your well deserved long rest you can't be surprised by an ambush of any sort. By being used to sleeping in uncomfortable hedges beneath the stars you are better in dealing with less sleep. You only have to rest for 4 hours per night.

The Truest of Knights: Level 3

The Truest of Knights

It is often said that Hedgeknights are the truest of knights. They protect the weak and bring justice to the wicked. Once per day you may choose an oath to fulfill. Choose one from the following:

- Oath of Shelter
When an ally within 5 ft. of you is being attacked, you may use your reaction to deflect halve the damage they receive to another target within 5ft of the initial target or deflect it to yourself. You may use this Oath a number of times equal to your proficiency modifier.
- Oath of Coin
When you are negotiating a contract or offering your services, you gain advantage on the haggling and negotiation skills. When the contract is sealed, the Oath is fulfilled and you no longer have advantage.
- Oath of Vengeance
You swear vengeance at a target you can see. You gain 1d10 extra damage against the target, until they perish. After this, the Oath will be fulfilled.

Tourney Veteran: Level 7

You've fought in countless melees and jousts to earn your coin. You're skilled at reading opponents in single combat and know the unspoken rules (and how to bend them) of organized fighting. You can make a strategy combat roll against an enemy. On success you spot their weakness and you gain advantage against this enemy until the end of combat. You can use this ability equal to your proficiency bonus.

You have contacts at various tourneys and know how to enter competitions even without a proper sponsor or recommendation of a proper knight or lord.

Lone Wolf: Level 10

Once when taking the weapon attack action on your turn, you can make another attack with the same weapon against a different creature that is within 5 feet of the original target and within range of your weapon. That second attack deals an additional 1d6 damage.

Relentless Retaliation: Level 15

When moving outside melee range, you impose disadvantage on opportunity attacks. Also when an attack misses you, you can use your reaction to retaliate with a single attack. If you hit with this retaliation you can add your proficiency modifier + 1d8 to your damage roll.

Strider:

Life Proficiencies: Swimming

Swift Strider: Level 1

At level 1, you learn to travel light and move quickly. When entering combat you gain +10 meter of movement and opportunity attacks against you have disadvantage during the first round of this combat. You have to be wearing light or medium armor.

A Hunters Instincts: Level 3

You've learned to strike from hiding like a hunter taking down prey. When you hit a creature with an attack while hidden during combat, you can deal an extra 1d8 damage. This increases to 2d8 at level 9 and 3d8 at level 15. Additionally, after dealing this damage, you can immediately use a bonus action to hide, melting back into cover like a ghost. Only if you haven't used your bonus action yet.

Mother Nature's Medicine: Level 7

Years of treating wounds in the field have made you an expert at keeping people alive. You gain the following benefits:

- You gain proficiency with herbalism kits and healer's kits
- During a short rest, you can tend to a number of creatures equal to your learning modifier. Each creature regains additional hit points equal to 1d10 + your learning modifier
- You can craft natural healing salves from foraged materials (1 hour of work produces items worth 1 silver)
- When you stabilize a dying creature, they regain 1 hit point instead of staying at 0

A Good Boy: Level 10

You've formed a bond with a wild animal that travels and fights alongside you. Choose a beast of the following list: Hawk, Crow, Ferret, Bloodhound, Retriever, Plott Hound, Terrier.

- Obeys your commands and acts on your initiative
- Has hit points equal to your level × 3
- Can take the Attack, Dash, Disengage, Dodge, or Help action on its turn
- Adds your proficiency bonus to its AC, attack rolls, damage rolls, and saving throws

If it dies, you can bond with a new animal after 1 week of training

Relentless Retaliation: Level 15

When moving outside melee range, you impose disadvantage on opportunity attacks. Also when an attack misses you, you can use your reaction to retaliate with a single attack. If you hit with this retaliation you can add your proficiency modifier + 1d8 to your damage roll.

Outlaw:

Life Proficiencies: Swimming

A Band of Broken Men: Level 1

You've learned that survival in the wild requires more than just a sword, you need followers. Whether through intimidation (intimidation), charm (persuasion), or shared hardship (negotiation), you can recruit desperate smallfolk, deserters, and other outcasts to your band. You have advantage when convincing others to join your cause if they are from the same or lower social class as you (renown).

Guerrilla Fighter: Level 3

You've learned to fight dirty and know how to exploit weaknesses in armored knights who aren't used to your style of combat. While wearing light armor or no armor, you exploit gaps in heavy defenses. When you hit a creature wearing heavy armor, you deal an additional 1d6 damage. This increases to 2d6 at level 9.

In addition, you have advantage on your attacks on targets that haven't taken their attack action in combat yet. If you hit an attack with advantage, the target also suffers -2 AC until the start of your next turn.

Illusive Shadow: Level 7

Years of evading hunters and soldiers have made you a master of disappearing into the wilderness. In forests, hills, mountains, swamps or jungle, you have advantage on stealth checks and leave little trace. Pursuers have disadvantage tracking you.

After years your name has become more and more disconnected with your visual appearance, many might not remember what you used to look like. You know your way around a disguise kit (proficiency) and are more confident in roam the streets of urban areas.

Escape Artist: Level 10

You've slipped out of more bad situations than you can count, cells, ambushes, encirclements, you've escaped them all. Starting at level 10, you gain the following benefits:

- You have advantage on checks or combat rolls to escape bonds, grapples, or imprisonment.
- Your movement speed increases by 10 feet when you're fleeing or retreating from danger
- You can pick locks and disable simple traps without tools, using improvised materials

Relentless Retaliation: Level 15

When moving outside melee range, you impose disadvantage on opportunity attacks. Also when an attack misses you, you can use your reaction to retaliate with a single attack. If you hit with this retaliation you can add your proficiency modifier + 1d8 to your damage roll.

Life in Westeros is hard and unforgiving, therefore it is of utmost importance that you know how to survive. You either play the Game of Thrones or you die. How you will survive depends largely on your skill set. Everyone is taught and trained in a different field, if you are good enough in your expertise, you might be able to survive. Some will seek their helm in ancient books while others hack away with the largest weapon they can find. Or would you rather climb to power from the shadows? The choice is up to you.

Priest

The world is filled with gods both old and new, and you have dedicated your life to serving the divine. Whether you kneel before the Seven, meditate beneath the heart trees of the Old Gods, or serve the Lord of Light in his eternal war against darkness, your faith grants you purpose and, some say, power. Priests in the Seven Kingdoms take many forms: septons and septas who wander the roads bringing the wisdom of the Seven to smallfolk, silent devotees of the nameless gods of Braavos, red priests proclaiming prophecy in the flames, or even the mysterious greenseers who commune with the weirwoods. Your path is one of devotion.

Priests occupy a unique position in society. The High Septon commands the faith of millions from the Great Sept of Baelor. Red priests are viewed with suspicion in some ports and reverence in others, their fire magic both feared and sought after. The devotees of the Drowned God embrace death by water to prove their faith, while the followers of the Many-Faced God deal in death itself. Some priests wield influence over lords and kings through counsel and prophecy, while others find their calling among the forgotten and downtrodden. Yet all share a common truth: in a land where winters last for years and ancient evils stir in the darkness, the gods, whether real or imagined, offer hope, answers, and perhaps even salvation to those who believe.

Creating a Priest

As you build your priest, think about which faith called to you and why. Did you take vows to the Faith of the Seven, learning to embody the virtues of the Father, Mother, Warrior, Maiden, Smith, Crone, and Stranger? Or do you follow the Old Gods, trained by a northern heart tree to interpret the whispers in the leaves and the visions in the weirwood's face? Perhaps you were reborn in salt and smoke as a servant of R'hllor, the Lord of Light, learning to read prophecies in the flames. You might even serve stranger gods, like the Drowned God. What sets you apart from other priests of your faith? Do you possess true divine gifts, or do you rely on wisdom, charisma, and knowledge of sacred texts?

Consider also your relationship with temporal power and how your faith shapes your actions in the world. Do you believe priests should remain apart from the games of thrones, offering spiritual guidance without meddling in politics? Or do you see your faith as a force that must actively shape the realm, whether through the High Septon's influence over the crown or a red priest's visions guiding military campaigns? Your holy symbols and vestments mark you as a servant of the divine. These items represent your covenant with your god and your place in a world where faith can inspire armies, topple dynasties, or offer comfort to the dying. In the end, you must decide: are you a voice of mercy in a merciless world, a prophet of doom and redemption, or something else entirely?

Priest Progress Table

	Renown Points	Proficiency Bonus	Feature
1	50	+2	Master of Ceremony, Battle Rites , Subclass Feature
2	110	+2	Be Judged Sinners!
3	180	+2	Subclass Feature
4	260	+2	Feat
5	355	+3	Faithful Congregation
6	465	+3	Ability Score Improvement
7	590	+3	Subclass Feature
8	735	+3	Feat
9	900	+4	Divine Attunement
10	1.085	+4	Subclass Feature
11	1.295	+4	Three Suns in the Sky
12	1.530	+4	Ability Score Improvement
13	1.790	+5	Faithful Congregation [+1]
14	2.080	+5	Feat
15	2.400	+5	Subclass Feature
16	2.750	+5	Ability Score Improvement
17	3.135	+6	Three Suns in the Sky [+1]
18	3.555	+6	Ability Score Improvement
19	4.015	+6	Be Judged Sinners! [+1]

Class Features

Hit Points

Hit Dice: 1d6 per priest level

Hit Points at 1st Level: 10 + your Constitution modifier

Hit Points at Higher Levels: 1d6 + your Constitution modifier per priest level after 1st

Proficiencies

Armor: Light
Weapons: Simple weapons
Tools: Calligrapher's supplies, Medicine Kit
Saving Throws: Learning, Attunement
Skills: Choose two skills from Persuasion, Management, Strategy, Sense, Religion, History, Magic, Forgery and Medicine

Starting Gear:

All starting gear have the 'Poor' condition

Armor: Hood - Tabard - standard set of worn pontifical shoes

Weapons: Option A: A quarterstaff or a dagger
Option B: One simple ranged weapon or a simple melee weapon

Battle Rites: Level 1

You can ease the passing of the dying and honor the dead with proper funeral rites. When engaged in combat, a person dies within 30 feet of you, you can immediately speak a prayer that grants comfort to their soul (and any nearby allies). Allied creatures who witness this gain temporary hit points equal to your attunement modifier and advantage on their next attack roll or saving throw, bolstered by the knowledge that even in death, the gods watch over them. You can perform this rite a number of times per short rest equal to your attunement modifier.

Master of Ceremony: Level 1

You have been trained in the ceremonies and rituals of your faith. You can perform religious services such as weddings, funerals, naming ceremonies, and blessings that are recognized as legitimate by followers of your religion. When you perform these rites, participants feel genuine spiritual comfort, leaving you and the attendees inspired. Additionally, you can identify religious symbols, holy sites, and sacred texts of various faiths.

Priest Subclass: Level 1, 3, 7, 10 & 15

At the 1st level, you choose an archetype that symbolises the faith you most closely align too. Choose The Seven, R'hollor or the Old Gods, all detailed at the end of the class description. The archetype you choose grants you features at 1st level and again at 3th, 7th, 10th and 15th.

Be Judged Sinners! : Level 2 & 19

You can invoke your god's displeasure against those who commit sins or violate sacred laws. Once per day, when you witness someone committing an act your religion considers gravely sinful

(murder, oath-breaking, desecration, etc.), you can pronounce judgment upon them. The target must make a combat roll (their attunement vs. your attunement + intimidation modifiers). On your success, they are shaken by spiritual dread and superstition, suffering disadvantage on all skills related to an ability you choose for the rest of the day. At level 19 you can choose two abilities to oppose disadvantage upon.

Faithful Congregation: Level 5 & 13

Your reputation as a holy person attracts devoted followers. You gain 1d4 faithful converts who will serve as acolytes, spreading your teachings and assisting in rituals. These followers are not skilled combatants but will aid you in religious ceremonies, tend to the sick, and help convert others. You can send them on missions to spread your faith, gather information from the faithful, or prepare safe havens. At level 13, this increases to 2d4 followers.

Ability Score Improvement: Level 6, 12, 16 & 18

When you reach 6th level, and again at 12th, 16th, and 18th level, you can increase one ability score of your choice by 2, or you can increase two ability scores of your choice by 1. As normal, you can't increase an ability score above 20 using this feature.

Divine Attunement: Level 9

Your connection to the spiritual realm deepens. Once per day, you can enter a meditative state for 1 hour to receive vague guidance, omens, or warnings from your god or spiritual force. The DM provides cryptic information about dangers, opportunities, or the will of the divine. This might come as visions in flames, whispers in the wind, dreams, or instinctive knowing.

Three Suns in the Sky: Level 11 & 17

You can invoke your god's protection over yourself and others. Once per day, you can perform a blessing ritual (taking 1 minute) on up to attunement modifier targets (minimum 1). Blessed creatures gain temporary hit points equal to twice your renown and advantage on their next saving throw against fear or mental influence. This blessing lasts until used or until the next dawn. You gain a second use of this feature at level 17.

R'hollor (Red Priest):

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

A Flame in the Night: Level 1

Starting at level 1, you gain the ability to light torches and bonfires simply by touching burning material with your hands. Use this ability to bring light to darkness, or simply to impress the rural townsfolk. You can use this ability a number of times equal to 1 + your attunement modifier and it takes a Bonus Action to use.

The Pink Priests Boon: Level 3

Starting at level 3, you gain the ability to light weapons on fire, by sacrificing your own blood. Take 1 hp damage and light your sword or someone else's on fire for 1 minute. It takes an Action to use. Each attack with the ablaze weapon deals an additional 1D6 fire damage. On a hit the target has to succeed on a Martial saving throw, or be frightened for the next turn.

The Guile of Glamour: Level 7

The flames of R'hllor can create illusions that bewitch the eyes and hearts of those who gaze upon you, much like the red priests of Asshai who walk in false faces.

As an action, you can invoke the Lord of Light's power to weave a glamour around yourself often channeled from a gemstone or chrystal. This glamour lasts for 1 hour or until you dismiss it (no action required). While the glamour persists, you gain the following benefits:

- You can alter your appearance, this only applies for your physical body, face and hair. Your clothing and other attributes that are no part of your body remain the same.
- While disguised by your glamour, you radiate an aura of charm and allure touched by R'hllor's fire. People who interact with you need to succeed an attunement saving throw against your DC (10 + proficiency + attunement modifier). If they fail they:
 - Regards you as a friendly acquaintance
 - Has disadvantage on deception combat rolls to see through your deception
 - Is inclined to believe what you say and follow reasonable requests

You can perform this Action equal to half your proficiency modifier rounded down.

Child of Darkness: Level 10

The Lord of Light grants you dominion over shadows pulled from the darkness. After performing a ritual where you bring another human being of any status into the light by burning them. You can magically manifest a child of darkness in an unoccupied space you can see within 15 feet of you. This shadow is a magical, translucent, dark silhouette of yourself that lasts until it is destroyed, until you dismiss it as a bonus action, until you manifest another shadow, or until you're incapacitated.

Your child of darkness has AC 14 + your proficiency bonus, 1 hit point, and immunity to all conditions. If it has to make a saving throw, it uses your saving throw bonus. It is the same size as you and occupies its space. On your turn, you can mentally command the shadow to move up to 30 feet in any direction (no action required). If your shadow is ever more than 30 feet from you at the end of your turn, it is destroyed.

- Swap with Child of Darkness: As a bonus action, you can teleport, magically swapping places with your shadow at a cost of 15 feet of your movement, regardless of the distance between you.
- Attack Through Child of Darkness: When you take the Attack action on your turn, any attack you make can originate from your space or the shadow's space. You make this choice for each attack.
- Child's Grasp: When a creature you can see within 5 feet of your shadow moves at least 5 feet away from it, you can use your reaction to make an opportunity attack against that creature as if you were in the shadow's space.

When your Child of Darkness is destroyed in combat, you take 2d6 cold damage as the darkness touches your soul. This damage cannot be reduced or prevented.

Kiss of R'hllor: Level 15

The Lord of Light may grant life to those taken by the Great Other's darkness, but such miracles demand sacrifice and leave lasting marks.

The Ritual: You can attempt to resurrect a creature that has died within the past 24 hours. You must perform a ritual that takes 8 hours of continuous prayer over the body, during which you burn precious offerings: R'hllor, believes only death can pay for life, therefore you must burn another being. This being needs to be as either innocent or high status you can find. This is crucial for the ritual to succeed. At the ritual's conclusion, make an Attunement check:

- DC 15 if they died within 6 hours | DC 18 if they died within 12 hours | DC 22 if they died within 24 hours

The Seven (Septon):

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

Aspects of the Seven: Level 1

Each day you may choose an aspect of the Seven, to guide you through the day. Choose one from the following aspects:

- The Father portrays the aspect of justice. You gain advantage on the Persuasion skill.
- The Mother is a loving and forgiving aspect of the seven. You gain advantage on the Negotiation skill.
- The Warrior protects followers of the Seven from their foes. You gain advantage on the Prowess skill.
- The Maiden lends courage to young women and protects their innocence. You gain advantage on the Medicine skill
- The Smith is the mender of broken things, who puts the world of men to right. You gain advantage on the Management skill.
- The Crone is often prayed to for wisdom and guidance. You gain advantage on the Sense skill.
- The Stranger is the outcast, the wanderer from far places, less and more than human, unknown and unknowable. You gain advantage on the Deception skill.

A Fathers Face: Level 3

Spending your time traveling from town to town gained you the benefit of a face who is trusted. When spending a long rest in a settlement. You can choose to learn one of the following information:

- A local rumour
- A piece of history about the location
- A local folklore story.
- A local song.
- Or something specific you can discuss with the GM

A Vessel for the Warrior: Level 7

You can use a Bonus Action to invoke the spirit of the warrior in one of your allies for one turn. When an enemy attempts to attack this particular ally it needs to make an Attunement saving throw against your save DC (10+ proficiency + attunement mod). When it fails it misses its attack.

You can use this ability an amount equal to your Attunement Modifier.

A Chronicle for the Crone: Level 10

Creating an Epic Novella. You gain proficiency in calligraphers tools and leather workers tools. You can spend 10 hours writing a novella about a person, house or story of your choice. When creating your story, decide the subject, tone (heroic epic, scandalous exposé, tragic tale, etc.), and whether it's based on truth or fiction. The spreading of this story can cause the following effects for the affected topic:

- Scandalous Tale = -5 rep
- Heroic Tale = +5 rep

Role a D6 to determine the pace of the distribution, the rolled number stands for the amount of months it takes to spread the word.

Role a performance check to determine the quality of your produced novella.

- 10 or below: The story is mediocre and spreads slowly, if at all. Reputation change reduced to -2 or +2. And it takes double the amount of rolled months. (rounded down)
- 11-15: Competent work that achieves the intended effect normally.
- 16-20: Exceptional work that spreads faster and grants the full $\pm 5/-5$ Reputation change in half the rolled months (rounded down)
- 21+: A masterpiece for the ages. Songs are sung about your song. The Reputation change is ± 6 instead of ± 5 , and the story becomes legendary, people will still reference it years from now. It spreads in half the rolled months (rounded down)

The Stranger's Mercy: Level 15

The Seven watch over all souls, and the Stranger may be persuaded to release one back to the living world, though at terrible cost.

The Ritual: You can attempt to resurrect a creature that has died within the past 24 hours. You must perform funeral rites for 8 hours, calling upon each of the Seven to intercede with the Stranger on the deceased's behalf. You must have seven witnesses present, who each embody an aspect of the Seven and sacred items representing each god (worth at least 500 gold total). At the ritual's conclusion, make an Attunement check:

- DC 15 if they died within 6 hours | DC 18 if they died within 12 hours | DC 22 if they died within 24 hours

Old Gods (Greenseer):

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

Laws of Hospitality: Level 1

You can try to invoke the ancient laws of Hospitality, with a Persuasion combat roll, where you will have advantage. This has to be done outside of combat. If you succeed you share bread and salt with another person (a ritual taking 1 minute), both you and they are bound by guest right for the next 24 hours or until one of you leaves the location where the pact was made. While bound, neither party can deliberately harm the other. If either attempts to break guest right by attacking or causing harm, they must succeed on an Attunement saving throw (DC equals 10 + your proficiency bonus + your attunement modifier) or be unable to complete the action. Those who successfully break guest rights are cursed by the Old Gods: they will suffer the consequences.

You can use this feature once per long rest, this increases to two times at level 6.

Warg Bond: Level 3

The Old Gods grant you the ability to bond with and warg into animal companions. You gain a bonded animal, at this level you can bond only with small game like: crow, rat, cat, dove, owl, fox, snake, or other small beast). Your bonded animal acts independently of you, but it always obeys your commands.

- It takes a successful animal bonding check with a DC based on the difficulty of the animal you are trying to bond with.
- In combat, your bonded animal shares your initiative and takes its turn immediately after yours. It can move and use its reaction on its own, but only takes the Dodge action unless you command it otherwise.
- You can understand the animal's primal instincts and cravings when warged inside your bonded animal.

As an action, you can enter a trance and warg into your bonded animal, seeing through its eyes and hearing through its ears. While warging, you are blind and deaf to your own surroundings, and your body is vulnerable. During this time, you can control the familiar's movements and actions. You can end the warg as a bonus action, returning to your own senses.

- You can see through and control your bonded animal up to half a mile.
- While warging, if your familiar takes damage, you must succeed on an Attunement saving throw (DC equals 10 or half the damage taken, whichever is higher) or be violently ejected from the warg. When ejected this way, you take 1d6 psychic damage and are stunned until the end of your next turn.
- If your familiar dies while you are warging into it, you suffer a severe psychic shock. You take 2d10 psychic damage and are unconscious for 1d4 hours.

The Weirwood Network: Level 7

The Weirwoods have been used by the Children of the Forest for centuries too, one of its functions was to be a network of vision. Once per long rest you can spend an hour looking and listening through your established network of Weirwoods. You can only look and listen through Weirwoods you have seen and touched. You can only use this network if you are touching a Weirwood at that very moment. When you are connected in this manner your body is blind and vulnerable. You are able to hear from your body's location.

Greater Warg Bond: Level 10

Your warging abilities have grown significantly. You can now bond with and warg into larger, more powerful beasts. When you perform the bonding ritual, you can choose a beast that would classify as a large game (such as a direwolf, giant eagle, bear, elk, or shadowcat). This beast becomes your bonded animal and uses the same rules as your original Warg Bond feature, but with improved capabilities:

- You can now have two bonded animals at the same time.
- While you are warging into it, you can use your own attack bonus and add your proficiency bonus to its damage rolls
- The range of your warging abilities increases to 1 mile

Additionally, you have mastered the art of warging:

- You can warg into your familiar as a bonus action instead of an action
- You have advantage on the Attunement saving throw to resist being ejected from a warg when your familiar takes damage

Cold Hands: Level 15

The Old Gods remember all who die beneath the weirwoods, and through ancient power, a greenseer may call a spirit back from the roots.

The Ritual: You can attempt to resurrect a creature that has died within the past 24 hours. You must bring their body to a weirwood heart tree and perform an 8-hour ritual, entering a deep trance and communing with the Old Gods through the roots. You must spill your own blood on the roots (taking 2d10 damage of which 1d10 is a permanent reduction to your own max HP). At the ritual's conclusion, make an Attunement check:

- DC 15 if they died within 6 hours | DC 18 if they died within 12 hours | DC 22 if they died within 24 hours

Life in Westeros is hard and unforgiving, therefore it is of utmost importance that you know how to survive. You either play the Game of Thrones or you die. How you will survive depends largely on your skill set. Everyone is taught and trained in a different field, if you are good enough in your expertise, you might be able to survive. Some will seek their helm in ancient books while others hack away with the largest weapon they can find. Or would you rather climb to power from the shadows? The choice is up to you.

Envoy

Words are weapons, knowledge is power, and influence can topple kingdoms where swords cannot. As an envoy, you have mastered the art of persuasion, negotiation, and the subtle games that shape the fate of Westeros and beyond. While knights win glory on the battlefield and lords command from their castles, you operate in the spaces between, in the great halls where alliances are forged, the markets where fortunes change hands, the libraries where ancient secrets gather dust, and the taverns where songs can make or break a reputation. Whether you're a silver-tongued diplomat navigating the treacherous waters of courtly intrigue, a shrewd merchant accumulating wealth and connections across the Narrow Sea, a traveling minstrel whose ballads influence hearts and minds, or a learned maester bearing the chains of wisdom, your talents lie in understanding people and using that understanding to achieve your goals.

In the Game of Thrones, envoys are invaluable yet often underestimated. A well-placed word can prevent a war or start one; a carefully crafted song can turn a hero into a villain in the eyes of the realm; a maester's counsel can guide a lord to prosperity or ruin; and a merchant's trade routes can fill coffers or starve a city. You thrive where others might falter, in tense negotiations, amid the chaos of a bustling market, within the hushed corridors of power, or before crowds hungry for entertainment and news. While you may not wear armor or wield a sword with the skill of a trained warrior, you possess something equally dangerous: the ability to shape perception, broker deals, uncover truths, and turn enemies into allies. In a world where betrayal is common and trust is rare, your skills make you both essential and vulnerable, for those who traffic in secrets and influence often know too much for their own safety.

Creating an Envoy

As you build your envoy, consider which discipline shaped you and how you came to master your craft. Did you train in the Citadel, forging link after link of your maester's chain through years of rigorous study? Perhaps you learned the merchant's trade from a parent or guild master. You might have been trained as a diplomat in a great lord's household, learning to read the subtle currents of courtly politics, or maybe you're a minstrel who discovered that a well-told tale can open doors that gold and steel cannot. What drives you through the dangerous world of Westeros? Do you serve a particular House, act as an independent agent selling your skills to the highest bidder, or pursue your own ambitions and thirst for knowledge? Your tools are your most prized possessions, whether it's a maester's chain and library, a merchant's ledgers and letters of credit, a diplomat's collection of secrets and favors owed, or a minstrel's fine instrument and repertoire of songs. In the right hands, these can prove mightier than any sword when armies cannot reach and only words, wisdom, or coin can carry the day.

Envoy Progress Table

	Renown Points	Proficiency Bonus	Feature
1	50	+2	Globetrotter, Master Negotiator , Subclass Feature
2	110	+2	Silver Tongue
3	180	+2	Subclass Feature
4	260	+2	Feat
5	355	+3	Master Negotiator [+1]
6	465	+3	Ability Score Improvement, Wingman
7	590	+3	Subclass Feature
8	735	+3	Feat
9	900	+4	Enhanced Replenishment
10	1.085	+4	Subclass Feature
11	1.295	+4	Master Negotiator [+2], Cultural Ambassador
12	1.530	+4	Ability Score Improvement
13	1.790	+5	Wingman [+1]
14	2.080	+5	Feat
15	2.400	+5	Subclass Feature
16	2.750	+5	Ability Score Improvement
17	3.135	+6	Master Negotiator [+3], Cultural Ambassador [+1]
18	3.555	+6	Ability Score Improvement
19	4.015	+6	Silver Tongue [+1]

Class Features

Hit Points

Hit Dice: 1d8 per envoy level

Hit Points at 1st Level: 10 + your Constitution modifier

Hit Points at Higher Levels: 1d8 + your Constitution modifier per envoy level after 1st

Proficiencies

Armor:	Light, medium
Weapons:	Simple weapons (ranged + melee), Martial Melee weapon
Tools:	Choose from: Musical Instrument or Calligraphy Tools
Saving Throws:	Stewardship, Diplomacy
Skills:	Choose two skills from Perception, Management, Looting, Dexterity, Hagglng, Deception, Forgery, and Negotiation

Starting Gear:

All starting gear have the 'Poor' condition

Armor:

Leather Cap - Gambison - standard set of worn
Bundschuhe, peasant shoes

Weapons:

Option A: Simple ranged weapon or two daggers
Option B: Martial Melee weapon or two simple melee weapons

Globetrotter: Level 1

Your journeys across Westeros and beyond have given you broad knowledge of people and places. You gain proficiency in one of the two of the following skills: History, Religion and a language of your choice. Additionally, when you enter a new settlement or region, you can make a History or Religion check with advantage (DC set by GM) to recall useful information about local customs, important figures, ongoing conflicts, or opportunities. This knowledge can provide crucial context for negotiations or avoiding cultural missteps.

Master Negotiator: Level 1, 5, 11 & 17

Words are wind, but words can blow down the walls of a castle. At 1st level you know how to skilfully weave your way through difficult negotiations. To do so, you can use an Envoy Dice. When you find yourself in a situation where you have to roll a diplomacy-related ability check, combat roll or saving throw, you may use this Envoy Dice to gain an edge. You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Diplomacy modifier. You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Envoy Dice die starts at 1d6, and increases to a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level and a d12 at 15th level.

Envoy Subclass: Level 1, 3, 7, 10 & 15

At the 1st level, you choose an archetype that symbolises your trade the closest, determine if you are going to be a diplomat, merchant, minstrel or measter. All detailed at the end of the class description. The archetype you choose grants you features at 1st level and again at 3th, 7th, 10th and 15th.

Silver Tongue : Level 2 & 19

Starting at level 2, you are a master at saying the right thing at the right time. When you make a diplomacy check or combat roll, you can treat a roll of 9 or lower as a 10. At level 19 you can treat every diplomacy check or combat roll of 18 and higher as a critical success

Wingman: Level 6 & 13

At the start of level 6 you have honed your speech to an exceptional level. You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one person other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you. That person gains one Envoy Die.

Once within the next hour, the person can roll the die and add the number rolled to one diplomacy ability check, combat roll, or saving throw it makes. The person can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Envoy Die, but must decide before the GM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Envoy Die is rolled, it is lost. A person can have only one Envoy Die at a time.

You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Diplomacy modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. At level 13 you can grant a person an Envoy Die for an entire day and you can inspire two people with one bonus action.

Ability Score Improvement: Level 6, 12, 16 & 18

When you reach 6th level, and again at 12th, 16th, and 18th level, you can increase one ability score of your choice by 2, or you can increase two ability scores of your choice by 1. As normal, you can't increase an ability score above 20 using this feature.

Enhanced Replenishment: Level 9

Beginning when you reach 9th level, you regain all of your expended Envoy Die when you finish a short or long rest. Instead of only replenishing while taking a long rest.

Cultural Ambassador: Level 11 & 17

You are completely up to speed and integrated with a culture of your choice. While conferencing with someone of the culture you specialized in you gain advantage on all persuasion, intimidation and negotiation combat rolls. Choose between: Dorne, The Westerlands, The Vale, The North, The Riverlands, The Iron Islands, The Reach, The Stormlands, The Crownlands

You can select one additional culture at level 17

Maester:

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

Forging the Maester's Chain; Tin: Level 1

At 1st level, forge your first link in your Maesters chain, the link of Tin signals your skill in Remedies. These are nature based solutions intended to heal and cure mild wounds and diseases. The Citadel gifts you a recipe book with the four basic remedies you learned during your study. During your lifetime you can learn and add new recipes to your book.

When you want to copy or add a new recipe to your book you can spend 2 hours writing a detailed instruction guide in your book. It costs you 1 vial of Ink.

In addition as a new Maester, you learn how to use your rationale to make others see reason. When rolling a diplomacy combat roll (negotiation, persuasion, intimidation), you can add your learning modifier to the dice roll.

Forging the Maester's Chain; Black Iron. : Level 3

At 3rd level, you forge the second link in your Maesters chain, a link of Black Iron which signifies the skill of ravenry. The Citadel provides you with a trained raven, which can be used to send and receive messages across the Seven Kingdoms. The location you send a raven too will need to have the ability to receive and send messages. For example, you can send a message to a keep in the Westerlands which then may answer. Sending a message to a group of travellers in the desert of Dorne however may prove to be difficult if not impossible. You can also add an Envoy Dice to Animal Bond checks related to training ravens.

Forging the Maester's Chain; Silver: Level 7

At 7th level, you forge the third link in your Maesters chain, a link of Silver which signifies Alchemy. You gain the ability to brew concoctions that are closer related to science, chemistry and esotericism. These concoctions are significantly more powerful and know various uses, like healing, harming or destruction. You can write the recipes down into your recipes book.

It does take you 4 hours to write a detailed Alchemy recipe with its instructions, it will cost 2 vials of Ink. In addition you gain proficiency with Alchemist Supplies.

Forging the Maester's Chain; Specialisation: Level 10

You gain the fifth link in your Maester's Chain, this time you can choose which chain you forge: Valyrian Steel, Copper, Iron, Gold or Bronze.

- Bronze: Astronomy and Astrology
You have forged the bronze link, mastering the movements of stars and celestial omens. You can observe the night sky to divine guidance based on the positions of stars, wandering stars (planets), and constellations. You gain three Stellar Points. Whenever you make an attack roll, an ability check, or a saving throw, you can spend one Stellar point to roll an additional d20. You can choose to spend one of your luck points after you roll the die, but before the outcome is determined. You choose which of the d20s is used for the attack roll, ability check, or saving throw. You regain your Stellar Points when you spend 1 hour charting the stars during a long rest.

Additionally, you can always determine the true north, the current date, and the time until sunrise or sunset by observing the heavens.

You gain proficiency in: Cartographer Tools,.

- Gold: Finances

You have forged the gold link, learning that wars and politics are won long before they begin, through careful allocation of resources. At the end of a long rest, you may convert a number of your replenished Envoy Dice into a War Chest. These dice are set aside and can be spent later by you or any ally who can reasonably draw on your preparations, representing pre-arranged supplies, bribes, or logistical support.

Envoy Die from your War Chest are specifically used to be added onto Attack Rolls. You can give one person two Envoy Dice. They do need to be used for separate attacks and last for the entire day. You have to be in a 30ft range of the people you are disturbing your Dice too. Your War Chest can hold a maximum of 10 Envoy Dice and it costs an Action to use an Envoy Die from your War Chest.

Prof: Jewelers Tools

- Iron: Warfare

You have forged the iron link not just in study, but in practice, training yourself in arms.

You gain proficiency with shields and martial melee weapons, and you may use Intelligence instead of Strength or Dexterity for attack and damage rolls with melee weapons, reflecting your calculated and precise fighting.

In addition, once per turn when you hit a creature with a melee weapon attack, you may expend an Envoy Die to deal extra damage equal to the die and choose one effect: push the target back 10 feet, impose disadvantage on its next attack, or allow an ally to move 10 feet without provoking reactions.

- Valeryan Steel: Mystic

You come into possession of a famed and ancient glass candle. With your current mastery of the Mystics you are able to attune with the candle and use it like they did in old Valyria before the Doom. Once per long rest you can attune to it for 10 minutes and are able to look across mountains, seas and deserts and watch events happen in the present time. Choose a place that you want to focus on, roll an Sense ability check, on a success you can watch and hear the activities of your chosen place for 10 minutes. If you are really familiar with the place you get a +5 on your roll, if you visit briefly it will be a normal roll, if you heard or read about it second hand you will have a -5 penalty. The further away your destination the higher the DC will be.

Additionally, you might receive messages or visions of entities who are also in possession of other glass candles. If you want to or not...

Prof: Receive an item with a mythical property. You choose which skill must benefit from this item. (confer with the GM)

Master of the Masses: Level 15

You have mastered the art of diplomacy to an exceptional degree. At level 15, you use an action to suggest a course of activity to up to twelve persons of your choice that you can see within range and that can hear and understand you. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Each target must make a diplomacy saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. You can use this feature once per long rest.

Minstrel:

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

Soothing voice: Level 1

At 1st level you have learned how to capture the minds of those that listen to your soothing voice. When you spend 1 minute performing, each person that can hear you is captivated by your music. They must succeed on a diplomacy saving throw. When they fail their throw, you gain advantage on diplomacy related rolls when talking to that person for 1 hour.

You can use this skill an equal time as your proficiency modifier, you regain these slots during a long rest.

[Invullen]: Level 3

[Invullen]

You are the master of shit stirring, you can turn every rumour, flaw and blunder into hard hitting words. When you perform a song, poem or play of slander outside combat you can tarnish one person's reputation by one and impose ... if you succeed in either a deception or persuasion role.

You can also use this ability as an Action in combat to distract an opponent. When you succeed in an intimidation combat role, the opponent has disadvantage on all attacks that round and you can choose to spend one Envoy Die which the opponent needs to subtract from his damage roll the next time he hits in combat.

[Invullen]: Level 7

Influence Opinions #DisstracksEnvoy Dice

[Bedenken]: Level 10

[Invullen]

Master of the Masses: Level 15

You have mastered the art of diplomacy to an exceptional degree. At level 15, you use an action to suggest a course of activity to up to twelve persons of your choice that you can see within range and that can hear and understand you. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Each target must make a diplomacy saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. You can use this feature once per long rest.

Merchant:

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

Corporate Certainty: Level 1

You have learned that uncertainty is for those without coins. When you would roll an Envoy Die, you may instead choose to treat the result as the maximum value of the die. To do so, you must pay a number of coins based on your current Envoy Die size and how many times you have used this feature since your last long rest. Payment must be made immediately in coin (gold, silver, or copper). If you cannot pay the full cost, the feature fails. You declare your usage before knowing the results of your roll.

The base cost is:

1d6 → 1 Gold Dragon

1d8 → 2 Gold Dragons

1d10 → 3 Gold Dragons

1d12 → 4 Gold Dragons

Each additional time you use this feature in the same day, the cost doubles cumulatively (1x, 2x, 4x, 8x).

Respectable Reputation: Level 3

At 3rd level, you establish yourself as a recognized dealer in a specific category of goods, such as arms and armor, horses, grain, luxury items, or raw materials. This specialization reflects not only your knowledge of the trade but also your network of contacts, suppliers, and buyers. When buying or selling goods within your chosen category, you secure more favorable terms. These terms are however connected to your reputation. If for each step towards a famed reputation you can buy your specialized goods for 5% less and sell them for 5% more. For each step towards a notorious reputation you will have to pay 5% more and sell it for 5% less.

Being more honed in your skill as a merchant you can now use your Envoy Dice for the Haggling ability as well.

Bulk Trader: Level 7

At level 7 your trade grows to a sizable enterprise and you have learned to move goods in bulk across long distances. You gain the ability to organize and manage caravans, allowing you to transport significantly larger quantities of goods than most merchants. The carrying capacity of your backpacks and steeds under your control is increased by 50%.

In addition, since you are used to being a target for bandits and other opportunists, you know how to keep yourself safe by staying close to your protectors. You gain a +2 on your Armor Class and deal an additional 1d6 damage when you are within 5ft of an Ally.

The Kings Route: Level 10

Setting up your trading route. In every village, city and capital you can buy a trading commission from the local authorities. You can also store and collect your money at these locations. When you add a location to your network it increases the interest on your deposit money. The interest is determined by the type of location.

- Village= 1%
- City = 2.5%
- Capital = 5%

At the end of each week (7 long rests), your stored money generates interest based on your network. Your interest rate is the sum of the places in your trade route.

In addition: When traveling between locations of your network it increases your movement speed by 50% and you can secure safe lodging and basic supplies at reduced cost.

Master of the Masses: Level 15

You have mastered the art of diplomacy to an exceptional degree. At level 15, you use an action to suggest a course of activity to up to twelve persons of your choice that you can see within range and that can hear and understand you. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Each target must make a diplomacy saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. You can use this feature once per long rest.

Diplomate:

Life Proficiencies: Writing - Reading

[Invullen]: Level 1

[Invullen]

Sharp Tongue: Level 3

At 3rd level your sharp tongue can unsettle your adversaries, causing them to doubt themselves. When a person you can see within 60 ft of you makes an attack roll, an ability check, or a combat roll, you can use your reaction to expend one of your Envoy Dice. Roll the Envoy Dice. The person must subtract the number rolled. You can choose to use this feature after the creature makes its roll, but before the DM determines whether the attack roll or ability check succeeds or fails, or before the person deals its damage.

[Invullen]: Level 7

Iets wat lijkt op de Groveler feat (zie feats). Reputatie kunnen opofferen voor crittical succes op diplomacy checks. Zoiets. Iets met het reputatie systeem.

[Bedenken]: Level 10

[Invullen]

Master of the Masses: Level 15

You have mastered the art of diplomacy to an exceptional degree. At level 15, you use an action to suggest a course of activity to up to twelve persons of your choice that you can see within range and that can hear and understand you. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Each target must make a diplomacy saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. You can use this feature once per long rest.

Life in Westeros is hard and unforgiving, therefore it is of utmost importance that you know how to survive. You either play the Game of Thrones or you die. How you will survive depends largely on your skill set. Everyone is taught and trained in a different field, if you are good enough in your expertise, you might be able to survive. Some will seek their helm in ancient books while others hack away with the largest weapon they can find. Or would you rather climb to power from the shadows? The choice is up to you.

Skulker

Words are weapons, knowledge is power, and influence can topple kingdoms where swords cannot. As an envoy, you have mastered the art of persuasion, negotiation, and the subtle games that shape the fate of Westeros and beyond. While knights win glory on the battlefield and lords command from their castles, you operate in the spaces between, in the great halls where alliances are forged, the markets where fortunes change hands, the libraries where ancient secrets gather dust, and the taverns where songs can make or break a reputation. Whether you're a silver-tongued diplomat navigating the treacherous waters of courtly intrigue, a shrewd merchant accumulating wealth and connections across the Narrow Sea, a traveling minstrel whose ballads influence hearts and minds, or a learned maester bearing the chains of wisdom, your talents lie in understanding people and using that understanding to achieve your goals.

In the Game of Thrones, envoys are invaluable yet often underestimated. A well-placed word can prevent a war or start one; a carefully crafted song can turn a hero into a villain in the eyes of the realm; a maester's counsel can guide a lord to prosperity or ruin; and a merchant's trade routes can fill coffers or starve a city. You thrive where others might falter, in tense negotiations, amid the chaos of a bustling market, within the hushed corridors of power, or before crowds hungry for entertainment and news. While you may not wear armor or wield a sword with the skill of a trained warrior, you possess something equally dangerous: the ability to shape perception, broker deals, uncover truths, and turn enemies into allies. In a world where betrayal is common and trust is rare, your skills make you both essential and vulnerable, for those who traffic in secrets and influence often know too much for their own safety.

Creating an Rogue

As you build your envoy, consider which discipline shaped you and how you came to master your craft. Did you train in the Citadel, forging link after link of your maester's chain through years of rigorous study? Perhaps you learned the merchant's trade from a parent or guild master. You might have been trained as a diplomat in a great lord's household, learning to read the subtle currents of courtly politics, or maybe you're a minstrel who discovered that a well-told tale can open doors that gold and steel cannot. What drives you through the dangerous world of Westeros? Do you serve a particular House, act as an independent agent selling your skills to the highest bidder, or pursue your own ambitions and thirst for knowledge? Your tools are your most prized possessions, whether it's a maester's chain and library, a merchant's ledgers and letters of credit, a diplomat's collection of secrets and favors owed, or a minstrel's fine instrument and repertoire of songs. In the right hands, these can prove mightier than any sword when armies cannot reach and only words, wisdom, or coin can carry the day.

Rogue Progress Table

	Renown Points	Proficiency Bonus	Feature
1	50	+2	[x], [x] , Subclass Feature
2	110	+2	[x]
3	180	+2	Subclass Feature
4	260	+2	Feat
5	355	+3	[x]
6	465	+3	Ability Score Improvement, [x]
7	590	+3	Subclass Feature
8	735	+3	Feat
9	900	+4	[x]
10	1.085	+4	Subclass Feature
11	1.295	+4	[x]
12	1.530	+4	Ability Score Improvement
13	1.790	+5	[x]
14	2.080	+5	Feat
15	2.400	+5	Subclass Feature
16	2.750	+5	Ability Score Improvement
17	3.135	+6	[x]
18	3.555	+6	Ability Score Improvement
19	4.015	+6	[x]

Class Features

Hit Points

Hit Dice: 1d8 per rogue level

Hit Points at 1st Level: 10 + your Constitution modifier

Hit Points at Higher Levels: 1d8 + your Constitution modifier per rogue level after 1st

Proficiencies

Armor: Light
Weapons: Simple weapons (ranged + melee) Martial Ranged weapons
Tools: Choose: Thieves tools or Forgery Kit
Saving Throws: Intrigue, Diplomacy
Skills: Choose two skills from Perception, Management, Looting, Dexterity, Hagglng, Deception, Forgery, and Negotiation

Starting Gear:

All starting gear have the 'Poor' condition

Armor: Hood - Leather Vest - standard set of worn leather sandals

Weapons: Option A: A Martial Ranged Weapon or two Simple melee weapons
Option B: Two Simple weapons with a thrown property

[Invullen]: Level 1

[invullen]: Level 1

Rogue Subclass: Level 1, 3, 7, 10 & 15

At the 1st level, you choose an archetype that symbolises your craft the closest, determine if you are going to be a thief, assassin or spymaster. All detailed at the end of the class description. The archetype you choose grants you features at 1st level and again at 3th, 7th, 10th and 15th.

[Invullen] : Level 2 & 19

[Invullen]: Level 5 & 13

+ Extra Attack

Ability Score Improvement: Level 6, 12, 16 & 18

When you reach 6th level, and again at 12th, 16th, and 18th level, you can increase one ability score of your choice by 2, or you can increase two ability scores of your choice by 1. As normal, you can't increase an ability score above 20 using this feature.

[Invullen]: Level 9

[Invullen]: Level 11 & 17

Thief

Assassin

Spy Master

3. Feats

Feats
Actor	+1 in Intrigue, advantage on Deception checks, mimic the speech of a person or the sounds made by an animal.
Alert	+5 to initiative, can't be surprised and enemies you don't see don't gain advantage on attack rolls against you.
Athlete	+1 in Martial. You stand up and climb more quickly, and you can jump with only a 5-ft run.
Blacksmiths Apprentice*	+1 on Stewardship, proficiency with Blacksmith's Tools, and you gain the ability to repair armor and arms up to the 'Good' condition.
Charger	As part of the Dash action you can make a melee attack with a +5 bonus if you move at least 10 ft before.
Crossbow expert	You ignore the loading property of crossbows and don't have disadvantage for being in contact with a creature when you shoot.
Crusher	+1 in Martial, 5 ft extra move when you hit (bludgeoning) and attacks with advantage after a critical hit.
Courtly Presence*	+1 in Diplomacy, gain advantage on persuasion when speaking in court.
Defensive Duelist	You can add your proficiency bonus to your AC if you are wielding a finesse weapon, in reaction to a melee attack.
Dual Wielder	+1 to AC if you're wielding a melee weapon in each hand, two-weapon fighting with non-light weapons, draw two weapons.
Durable*	Every level you can add a standard +2 on top off your hitdice and constitution modifier when adding hitpoints.
Cave Dweller	Advantage to Perception and Investigation checks, to saving throws vs traps, and search for traps at normal pace.

Fighting Initiate	You learn one Fighting Style option from the warrior class.
Grappler	You have advantage on attack rolls when grappling, and can try to restrain an enemy grappled by you.
Great Weapon Master	Extra attack after a melee critical hit and you can choose to take -5 to attack roll to add +10 to damage with a heavy weapon.
Groveler*	Sacrifice 1 reputation (swing 1 towards notorious) to instantly succeed any diplomacy combat roll.
Healer*	+1 Attunement and you can use medical herbs or remedies to stabilize a creature and restore it to 1 hp.
Heavily Armored	+1 in Martial. and you gain proficiency with heavy armor.
Heavy Armor Master*	Heavy Armor doesn't have a bludgeoning vulnerability
Keen Mind	+1 in Learning, you know which way is north, when is the next sunrise/sunset, and recall any events within the past month.
Lightly Armored	+1 in Martial and you gain proficiency with light armor.
Homeschooled*	+1 in Learning, you have the ability to write, read and you know one extra language.
Horseback Archer*	You are able to wield ranged weapons from horseback without disadvantage.
Martial Adept	You learn two maneuvers from the Knight Subclass and gain one Valor die (d6).
Squire*	+1 in Martial, proficiency with one type of martial weapon, shields and has advantage on martial saving throws to stay seated on steed.
Medium Armor Master*	No disadvantage to Stealth checks and medium armor grants piercing resistance.
Mobile	Your speed increases by 10 ft, you can Dash on difficult terrain without malus, and don't provoke opportunity attacks in melee.
Moderately Armored	+1 in Martial and you gain proficiency with medium armor and shields.

Mounted Combatant	Advantage on melee attacks against unmounted creatures and force an attack to target you instead of your mount.
Mummer	+1 in intrigue., proficient with a disguise kit.
Observant	+1 to Learning, you can read on lips, and you have a +5 bonus in passive Perception.
Armor Piercer*	+ 1 in Martial, you can ignore Piercing resistances on armor while wielding a weapon that does Piercing damage.
Poisoner	Proficiency with poisoner's kit, apply as a bonus action and your attacks ignore resistance to poison damage.
Polearm Master	You can make an extra attack with a polearm weapon, and make an opportunity attack if a creature enters your reach.
Prodigy	You gain proficiency with one skill, one tool or one language, and you gain expertise with one skill.
Resilient	+1 in one ability and you gain proficiency in saving throws using this ability.
Renowned*	The amount of renown you gain for your deeds will increase by 1.5 times your level.
Savage attacker	You can reroll melee weapon attack damage once per turn.
Wounding Attacker*	When attempting to wound an enemy, you may always use a Dice level lower than the standard penalty when rolling a targeted attack. (D12 becomes D10 etc).
Sentinel	A successful attack of opportunity reduces enemy speed to 0 for this turn and possibility to make an opportunity attack even if enemy disengages.
Siege Expert*	You may add your proficiency bonus when operating siege weapons and when attempting to break doors. You have advantage on strategy checks when trying to break a siege.
Sharpshooter	Your ranged attacks ignore some cover, no disadvantage at long range, and possibility to take -5 to hit for +10 on ranged damage.
Shield Master*	You may add an additional +1 to your armor class when wearing a shield. And you can Shield Bash as a bonus action. If you succeed in a prowess combat role you knock your opponent prone.

Skill expert	+1 in one ability, proficiency in one skill and expertise in one other in which you have proficiency.
Skilled	You gain proficiency with three skills or tools.
Skulker	Ranged weapon attack doesn't reveal your position and possibility to hide in a lightly obscured area.
Slasher	+1 on Martial. Reduce target's speed by 10 ft when you hit (slashing) and target has disadvantage on attack rolls.
Swimmer	You gain the ability to Swim and Dive.
Scrap Lord*	You are able to upgrade Tragic armour directly to Decent armour for the same price as Tragic to Poor.
Tavern Brawler	+1 in Martial., proficiency with improvised weapons, d4 for unarmed strike, and grapple with a bonus action.
Tough	Your hit point maximum increases by an amount equal to twice your level then by +2 at each level.
Weapon Master	+1 in Martial. and you gain proficiency with four weapons.

4. Writing a Backstory

Writing a character's background story is about more than listing events, it's about understanding who your character is and why they act the way they do. Start by grounding them somewhere in the Seven Kingdoms: where they come from, what shaped their upbringing, and the key moments that defined them. Think in terms of motivations rather than just history. A good background answers questions like: What do they want? What do they fear? Who or what do they care about? By focusing on these elements, your character becomes someone who feels real and has a reason to be part of the story.

One tip from us as creators: You don't have to write a full novel, let it be open-ended, you will create your story mostly during the campaign your GM sets-up. And more importantly, Westeros is deadly, if you write a huge novella, you might need to tear it up quite quickly again.

5. Rolling for Skills

To roll stats in the ASOIAF RPG, roll four 6-sided dice and add the three highest numbers together. Repeat this process six times to generate six distinct scores. Finally, assign these six scores to your ability scores (DIP, FOR, STE, MAR, LEA, ATT) as you see fit.

Abilities and Skills

1. Abilities

Diplomacy:

Are you looking to befriend or advise your way to the top? Then you are certainly in need of some diplomacy. Diplomacy is all about saying the right things at the right time. Though the style of your communication may vary, it all comes down to talking your way out of any situation. You can use diplomacy skills to negotiate a great deal for your shipment or you could intimidate and convince an innkeeper to give you his last room. Convincing people to do what you want, that is what it is all about.

Intrigue:

Life isn't fair, so you should have to play fair either. With intrigue you can try to cheat your way to life. Creating chaos based on lies and deception that is your style. You can use intrigue to forge a letter that incriminates a lord to gain leverage over him or you can sneak your way through areas of castles and cities that you are not supposed to be in. Deceit is your modus operandi.

Stewardship:

Gaining a few pennies is not hard, multiplying those pennies into a fast horde of golden dragons is the challenge. Stewardship is all about the organisation of your assets. You can put your stewardship to use for haggling over a trade you want to make with a fellow traveler or to manage the perfect line of distribution for your household goods. Money makes the world go around, we all know that..

Martial:

In a world filled with violence attack might be your best defence. With your martial skills you are able to hold your own when situations escalate into combat. You will not only be able to wield any weapons of your choice to hack and shoot your opponent to pieces, you can also use your brains to discuss strategies with lords and commanders of vast armies. Who needs words when you can let your steel do the talking?

Learning:

Humanity should be able to learn from their past, or is it just one big vicious circle. That is up to you to determine, with your skills for learning you have more knowledge than most of the folks around you. You can use all this knowledge to explain and warn lords of their course of action based on the missteps in historic events or you can craft a brew that disinfects the wounds of a fallen companion. Books are the whetstone of the brain and knowledge is power.

Attunement:

During a long summer the world seems so mundane and normal, but what if it is not? With your attunement skills you will be the first to notice magic flowing back into Westeros. You can use your attunement to create unusual strong bonds with the animals that roam the world with us or to tap into deep rooted mystical powers left by ancient civilizations like the Children of Forest. Can you feel the winter coming?

Systems

1. Combat Rolls

The world around you is fiercely competitive, and success depends on your skills. However, you're not the only one with valuable abilities. When you challenge another individual, you'll need to prove your worth by rolling the dice in a combat role. Both you and your opponent will use the same skill: one as the aggressor and the other as the defender. In the case of a tie, the defender always prevails.

Example 1: Detecting a Lie

You're negotiating with a merchant in King's Landing who claims his shipment of Dornish wine is "the finest vintage, worth every copper." You suspect he's trying to pass off cheaper wine at premium prices. This calls for a Deception vs. Deception combat roll.

- You (Aggressor) roll Deception to see through his lies and read his tells, the nervous gesture, the averted eyes, the too-smooth assurances.
- The Merchant (Defender) rolls Deception to maintain his facade and convince you his story is genuine.

You roll a 14 including modifiers. The merchant rolls a 12 including modifiers.

Since you rolled higher, you catch the subtle signs of his dishonesty, perhaps noticing how he shifts his weight when mentioning the vintage year, or how his smile doesn't quite reach his eyes. You've successfully seen through his deception and can call him on it, negotiate a better price, or simply walk away from the deal.

If the merchant had rolled 14 as well (a tie), he would win as the defender, his performance convincing enough that you can't quite tell if he's lying or not.

Example 2: Debating Battle Tactics

You're in the war tent with your fellow commanders, planning an assault on a rival House's fortified position. Another commander, a grizzled veteran with years of experience, proposes a direct frontal assault at dawn, arguing that overwhelming force will break their lines quickly. You believe this is folly and propose a flanking maneuver through the nearby woods to strike their vulnerable supply lines, forcing them to abandon their strong position.

This calls for a Strategy vs. Strategy combat roll.

- You (Aggressor) roll Strategy to articulate your tactical reasoning, pointing out the weaknesses in the frontal assault and demonstrating how your flanking plan exploits the terrain and enemy deployment.

- The Veteran Commander (Defender) rolls Strategy to defend his plan, citing historical precedents and arguing that your flanking route is too risky and will take too long.

You roll a 16 including modifiers. The veteran rolls a 13 including modifiers.

Your arguments prove more convincing. You successfully demonstrate the flaws in the frontal assault, the killing ground their archers would create, the bottleneck at their gates, while your knowledge of the terrain and supply line vulnerabilities wins over the other commanders. Your strategy is adopted for the battle.

If the veteran had rolled 16 as well (a tie), his experience and reputation would carry the day as the defender, and the army would proceed with his frontal assault plan, regardless of your concerns.

Example 3: A Tourney Joust

You're thundering down the lists at a grand tourney, lance leveled at your opponent, a knight from House Lannister wearing gilded armor that gleams in the sun. Thousands of smallfolk and nobles watch from the stands as you both charge at full gallop, each seeking to unhorse the other and claim victory.

This calls for a Prowess vs. Prowess combat roll. The one with the Higher Renown is considered to be the Defender.

- You (Aggressor) roll Prowess to control your mount, keep your lance steady, and strike your opponent's shield or chest with enough force to knock him from his saddle.
- The Lannister Knight (Defender) rolls Prowess to maintain his seat, angle his shield properly, and potentially deflect your lance while delivering his own strike.

You roll an 18 including modifiers. The Lannister knight rolls a 15 including modifiers.

Your lance strikes true! The impact catches him squarely on the chest, and despite his desperate attempt to grip with his legs, the force sends him tumbling backward off his horse into the dust. The crowd roars as you raise your lance in victory, riding past the overturned knight while heralds announce your name. You advance to the next round of the tourney.

If the Lannister knight had rolled 18 as well (a tie), he would prevail as the defender, managing to keep his seat while your lance glances off his shield, leaving both riders intact but giving him the round on points.

2. Wounds

Inflicting Wounds: Targeted Attacks:

If you want to inflict a specific wound on an opponent, you can target a particular body part before making your attack. When you target a specific body part, you take a penalty on your attack roll based on the location targeted. If you still hit despite the penalty, the severity of the wound depends on how high your damage roll is.

Targeting Penalties:

- Head = 1d12 penalty to attack roll
- Leg = 1d10 penalty to attack roll
- Arm = 1d8 penalty to attack roll
- Torso = 1d6 penalty to attack roll

Wound Severity Calculation:

Once you successfully hit with a targeted attack, compare your damage roll to the target's Armor Class (AC) and maximum health to determine the wound severity:

- Mild Wound = Damage is lower than the target's AC
- Moderate Wound = Damage is higher than the target's AC
- Critical Wound = Damage is higher than the target's AC + 10% of their maximum health (rounded down)

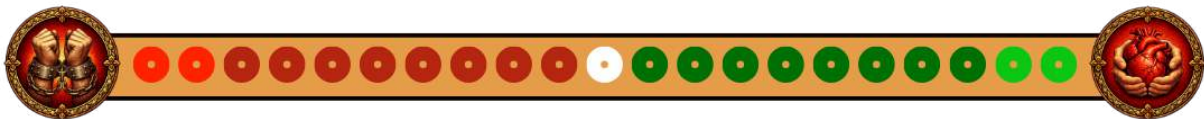

Example: If a target has 43 maximum health, 10% equals 4.3, rounded down to 4. Therefore, damage must exceed AC + 4 to inflict a Critical Wound.

3. Reputation

While your Renown measures how well-known you are throughout the realm, your Reputation reflects how you are known, whether smallfolk whisper your name with hope or fear, and whether lords see you as honorable or ruthless. In Westeros, being famous means little if your name is cursed in every tavern and sept.

The Reputation Scale

Your Reputation is tracked on a scale of 20 dots, with a neutral center point:

- Neutral (0): You're known, but your moral character hasn't particularly distinguished itself yet. Most people have no strong opinion about your methods.
- Famed (+1 to +10): You're known as honorable, merciful, just, or heroic. Songs celebrate your noble deeds, and common folk trust you. The higher your Famed reputation, the more you're seen as a paragon of virtue.
- Notorious (-1 to -10): You're known as ruthless, cruel, treacherous, or dishonorable. People fear you, and your name carries dark weight. The lower your Notorious reputation, the more you're seen as a villain or monster.

How Reputation Changes (these are just examples):

Your Reputation shifts based on your choices and how you complete missions:

Honorable Actions (shift toward Famed):

- Keeping your sworn word, even when it costs you
- Showing mercy to defeated enemies
- Protecting the innocent and smallfolk
- Refusing to use underhanded tactics
- Delivering justice fairly
- Turning down morally questionable rewards

Dishonorable Actions (shift toward Notorious):

- Breaking oaths or betraying allies
- Killing prisoners or unarmed foes
- Harming innocents or allowing them to suffer
- Using poison, assassination, or deception in warfare
- Committing war crimes or atrocities
- Choosing personal gain over moral duty

Managing Your Reputation

Unlike Renown, which always increases, Reputation is fluid and can shift dramatically based on your choices. A hero can fall from grace, and a villain can seek redemption, though climbing back from a Notorious reputation is far harder than sliding into one.

Consider your long-term goals: Do you want to be remembered as a hero of the people, or are you willing to be hated if it means achieving victory? In Westeros, both paths can lead to power, but the journey, and the cost, will be very different.

4. Renown

In Westeros, your name and reputation are the keys to opening many doors. Reputation is hard to earn and easy to lose. The higher your renown level, the more benefits you'll experience. You can gain Renown through various means, such as contracts, negotiations, tourneys, battles, and more. Check your class sheet to see the benefits you gain at each level of Renown.

5. Armor Class

It is easier to don some armor than to learn to swing a sword. Even the biggest men can fall from a single cut if they are not well protected. Therefore, everybody starts with the same base Armor Class score of 8. Through collecting various pieces of armor you can make sure you are well protected in combat!

In your inventory you have 4 armor slots; helmet, gauntlets, body armor and sabatons. Each armor type has its own resistances and vulnerabilities. These armor stats only become active when you wear 3 out of 4 armor pieces from the same armor type; light, medium or heavy.

These resistances and vulnerabilities consist of piercing damage, slashing damage and bludgeoning damage. When you are wearing a full suit of armor (3) your movement speed is also affected. Wearing heavy armor decreases your movement with 10ft, medium with 5ft and light is not affected.

6. Constitution

In Westeros it is quite important that you have good resilience. Food might not always be prepared well, by either you or a vendor. Your enemies might slip a potion in your drink. Your battlewounds can get infested. But more importantly, you need to be able to hold your drink! How is your constitution determined? As commonly known, the more mass, the more it requires to take down. Look up what weight you have given your character and see the table below for your constitution modifier.

Weight (KG)	Modifier	Weight (KG)	Modifier
40 - 50	-1	80 - 90	+3
50 - 60	0	90 - 100	+4
60 - 70	+1	100 - 110	+5
70 - 80	+2	110 - 120	0

7. Mounted Combat

Mounted combat is a common and often decisive element of warfare in Westeros, especially for those fortunate enough to own and train a steed. Riding into battle grants speed and presence, but it also demands balance, control, and a different approach to fighting than one would have on foot.

When you ride into combat astride your steed, the two of you act as one. Your movements are tied together, sharing the same initiative, whether you began the fight mounted or climbed into the saddle amidst the chaos. Once mounted, your steed carries you at its pace, and you rely on its speed rather than your own.

- Same initiative
- When mounted use your steeds movement speed.

Mounting or dismounting in the heat of battle is no small feat. It takes both time and focus, costing part of your movement as well as your action. A rider must commit fully to the act, whether leaping into the saddle or dropping to the ground.

- Action to mount and dismount
- Costs half your movement

Fighting from horseback limits what weapons you can effectively wield. Large, unwieldy arms that require both hands are too cumbersome to manage while controlling your mount, forcing you to rely on one-handed weapons instead. Likewise, shooting arrows or other ranged attacks from the saddle is far less precise, as the motion of the steed throws off your aim.

- Disadvantage on ranged attacks
- Disadvantage with two-handed weapons

There is also the ever-present danger of being unseated. A solid blow can send even a skilled rider tumbling to the ground. Whenever you take a hit while mounted, you must struggle to keep your balance, making a Martial Saving Throw against the force of the strike. The harder the blow, the more difficult it is to remain in the saddle, though even a glancing hit can prove dangerous. Failure means you are thrown from your steed, landing prone and vulnerable.

- Martial saving throw when hit, DC equal to damage dealt, minimum of 10.
- When knocked down you are prone and take x bludgeoning damage.

Equipment Quality and Maintenance

1. Quality Ratings

The condition of your armor and weapons directly affects your combat effectiveness. Every piece of equipment has a quality rating that provides bonuses or penalties to your performance. Maintaining your gear is essential for survival in Westeros, where a rusty sword or cracked breastplate can mean the difference between life and death.

Quality Ratings:

Equipment is rated on a five-tier scale, each providing a modifier to your Armor Class (for armor) or Attack Rolls (for weapons):

- Tragic: -2 modifier (severely damaged, nearly broken)
- Poor: -1 modifier (damaged, neglected)
- Decent: +0 modifier (serviceable, standard condition)
- Good: +1 modifier (well-maintained, quality craftsmanship)
- Excellent: +2 modifier (masterwork, pristine condition)

When a piece of armor or a weapon has the 'tragic' condition, every time it is used to defend from an attack or to make an attack, there is a chance that the item will be damaged to an irreparable state. Roll a d20. When you roll a 10 or lower, the piece of equipment will break.

2. Degradation

Armor:

Your armor suffers damage when you take wounds in combat. Each armor piece (helmet, body armor, gauntlets, sabatons) protects a specific body part and degrades when that area is struck:

- Moderate Wound: The armor piece drops one quality tier

- Critical Wound: The armor piece drops two quality tiers

Example: You're wearing Good quality plate armor (+1 AC). During battle, you suffer a Critical Torso Wound. Your body armor drops two tiers from Good to Poor, changing your modifier from +1 AC to -1 AC. Your total AC decreases by 2 points, making you more vulnerable for the rest of the fight unless you can repair or replace the armor.

Weapon:

Weapons and shields require regular maintenance. If you neglect to care for your weapons or shield for more than 24 hours after you have been in combat, they begin to degrade:

- After 24 hours of neglect: Drop one quality tier
- Every additional 24 hours: Drop one more quality tier

Proper care includes cleaning after battle, sharpening blades with whetstones, oiling metal to prevent rust, or maintaining the wood and string of bows and staves.

Example: You carry an Excellent longsword (+2 Attack) into battle. After a hard fight, you're exhausted and forget to clean the blood and grime from the blade. 24 hours pass, and your sword drops to Good quality (+1 Attack). Another two days go by without maintenance, and it drops again to Decent (+0 Attack). You've lost your +2 bonus entirely through neglect.

3. Repairing and Upgrading Equipment

You can restore or improve equipment quality through professional smithing or your own efforts (if proficient with smith's tools, leatherworker's tools, or other relevant toolkits):

- Self-Repair: Requires proficiency with appropriate tools and materials. Cost varies.
 - You are only to upgrade to the Decent condition with your own tools.
- Professional Smith: Faster and more reliable, but more expensive.
 - Can upgrade up to Excellent condition.

The higher the quality you're trying to achieve, the more expensive and time-consuming the process becomes. Reaching Good and Excellent quality requires master craftsmanship and premium materials.

Example: After your armor degrades to Poor quality (-1 AC), you visit a smith in King's Landing. You pay 75 gold and wait a day for him to hammer out the dents, replace broken rivets, and restore it to Decent quality (+0 AC). If you want to upgrade it further to Good quality (+1 AC), that would cost an additional 250 gold and take 2-3 days of work.

GM Tables:

1. Wound Status Effects

When a player successfully inflicts a wound through a targeted attack, the GM rolls 1d4 to determine which status effect applies based on the wound severity and body part hit.

HEAD WOUNDS

Mild Head Wound (1d4):

1. Dazed - Disadvantage on the next attack roll or ability check
2. Ringing Ears - Disadvantage on Perception checks involving hearing for 1 minute
3. Bloodied Face - -1 to Attraction score until cleaned
4. Disoriented - Disadvantage on Initiative checks for the next combat round

Moderate Head Wound (1d4):

1. Concussed - Disadvantage on all Intelligence-based checks for 1 hour
2. Blurred Vision - Disadvantage on all attack rolls for 3 rounds
3. Stunned - Lose your next action as you stagger from the blow
4. Bleeding Profusely - Take 1d4 damage at the start of each turn until bandaged (requires an action)

Critical Head Wound (1d4):

1. Severe Concussion - Unconscious for 1d4 rounds, then disadvantage on all rolls for 24 hours
 2. Blinded - Cannot see for 1d6 rounds; after that, disadvantage on sight-based checks for 1 hour
 3. Skull Fracture - Disadvantage on all rolls, movement speed halved, requires immediate medical attention or risk death
 4. Knocked Senseless - Drop whatever you're holding, fall prone, disadvantage on all rolls for 1 minute
-

LEG WOUNDS

Mild Leg Wound (1d4):

1. Limping - Movement speed reduced by 10 feet until healed
2. Painful Stride - Disadvantage on Athletics checks involving running or jumping for 1 hour
3. Off Balance - Disadvantage on the next Dexterity saving throw
4. Slowed - Cannot take the Dash action for 3 rounds

Moderate Leg Wound (1d4):

1. Hobbled - Movement speed halved for 1 hour or until magically healed
2. Cannot Run - Movement speed reduced by 15 feet, cannot Dash for 24 hours
3. Prone - Knocked to the ground; standing costs half your movement
4. Bleeding Leg - Movement speed reduced by 10 feet and take 1d4 damage at start of each turn until bandaged

Critical Leg Wound (1d4):

1. Crippled - Movement speed reduced to 5 feet, cannot stand without support, disadvantage on Dexterity saves
2. Severed Tendon - Cannot walk without aid, requires weeks of recovery or permanent limp
3. Shattered Bone - Fall prone, movement speed reduced to 0 until splinted and healed
4. Arterial Bleed - Take 1d8 damage at start of each turn, must be stabilized within 3 rounds or fall unconscious

ARM WOUNDS

Mild Arm Wound (1d4):

1. Numbed - Disadvantage on the next attack with that arm
2. Weakened Grip - Disadvantage on Martial checks using that arm for 10 minutes
3. Painful - Take -1 to attack rolls with that arm for 3 rounds
4. Bruised - Disadvantage on checks requiring fine manipulation with that hand for 1 hour

Moderate Arm Wound (1d4):

1. Disarmed - Drop whatever you're holding in that hand
2. Useless Arm - Cannot use that arm effectively for attacks or complex actions for 1 hour
3. Shield Broken - If holding a shield, it's damaged and provides -1 AC until repaired
4. Bleeding - Disadvantage on attack rolls with that arm and take 1d4 damage per round until bandaged

Critical Arm Wound (1d4):

1. Shattered Limb - Arm is useless, automatic failure on any action requiring that arm, excruciating pain causes disadvantage on all rolls

2. Severed Muscles - Cannot wield weapons with that arm for weeks, permanent -2 prowess and dexterity with that arm
 3. Compound Fracture - Arm unusable, take 1d6 damage per round from shock and bleeding until stabilized
 4. Mangled Hand - Lose fingers or hand functionality, cannot use that hand, requires major healing or amputation, both resulting in permanent injury.
-

TORSO WOUNDS

Mild Torso Wound (1d4):

1. Winded - Can not take the dash or disengage action for 3 turns.
2. Bruised Ribs - Disadvantage on Martial checks for 10 minutes
3. Painful Breathing - Disadvantage on the next saving throw.
4. Staggered - Lose 5 feet of movement speed for 3 rounds

Moderate Torso Wound (1d4):

1. Cracked Ribs - Disadvantage on all attack rolls and Martial checks for 1 hour
2. Internal Injury - Take 1d4 damage at the start of each turn for 3 rounds
3. Punctured - Disadvantage on constitution saves, movement reduced by 10 feet for 1 hour
4. Heavy Bleeding - Take 1d6 damage per round until bandaged (requires action), disadvantage on all physical actions like attacking, mounting steed, throwing, jumping etc.

Critical Torso Wound (1d4):

1. Vital Organ Hit - Take ongoing 1d8 damage per round, fall unconscious in 1d4 rounds without immediate (magical) healing
2. Collapsed Lung - Cannot speak, disadvantage on all rolls, movement speed reduced to 0.
3. Mortal Wound - Begin making death saving throws immediately, require stabilization within 3 rounds
4. Disemboweled - Extreme pain and shock, fall prone, disadvantage on all rolls, take 2d6 damage per round until stabilized

2. Reputation Effects

The Game Master determines how many dots your Reputation shifts based on the severity and visibility of your actions. A small mercy might shift you +1, while saving an entire village could shift you +3. Likewise, breaking a minor promise might be -1, but massacring prisoners could be -4 or more.

Effects of Reputation

Your position on the Reputation scale affects how the world responds to you:

Famed Reputation Benefits:

- Smallfolk are more willing to help, shelter, or inform you
- Honorable knights and noble lords treat you with respect
- You gain bonuses to Diplomacy when dealing with those who value honor
- Recruiting followers who believe in justice and righteousness is easier
- Some enemies may hesitate to kill you, fearing the backlash

Famed Reputation Drawbacks:

- Ruthless enemies see you as naive or exploitable
- You may struggle to intimidate or threaten effectively
- Pragmatic allies might question your unwillingness to "do what must be done"
- Your reputation makes it harder to operate in morally gray situations

Notorious Reputation Benefits:

- Enemies and rivals fear you, making intimidation more effective
- Ruthless lords and pragmatic allies respect your willingness to win at any cost
- You gain bonuses when threatening or coercing others
- Recruiting desperate, morally flexible followers is easier
- Some conflicts can be avoided as people prefer not to cross you

Notorious Reputation Drawbacks:

- Common folk distrust or fear you, making information gathering difficult
- Honorable knights and noble houses may refuse to work with you
- You suffer penalties to Diplomacy with those who value virtue
- Assassination attempts and ambushes become more common
- Your enemies feel justified using any means to stop you

Extreme Reputation (±8 to ±10)

When you reach the far ends of the scale, your reputation becomes legendary:

- The Virtuous (Famed +8 to +10): You're spoken of like the legendary knights of old; Ser Arthur Dayne, Barrister Selmy in his prime. Bards sing of your honor, and even enemies may respect you. However, any dishonorable action will shock people and cause massive Reputation loss.

- The Dreaded (Notorious -8 to -10): You're feared like Gregor Clegane or the worst villains of the realm. Your very presence inspires terror, and your threats are taken deadly seriously. However, almost no one trusts you, and even your allies watch their backs.

The Armory

Do you think it's honor that's keeping the peace? Society in the Seven Kingdoms is a martial one. Knights and armed men keep the King's peace, and even a simple septon would be wise to arm himself. It's a good thing then, that the Realm has no shortage of arms and armor. The class you choose decides which armor and arms you will be able to wear. Be it a formidable warhammer, an elegant longsword or a simple crossbow.

Arms

There is no shortage of weapons to choose from in Westeros. Each weapon has its own distinct qualities and ways to defeat your opponent. There are some additional attributes that may give you an edge in combat, but also some that might hinder you:

- Armor piercing: These weapons have the ability to pierce through weak spots in the armor of your opponent. When using simple weapons with this attribute, the armor class of your opponent is lowered by 1, when using martial weapons with this attribute, the armor class of your opponent is lowered by 2.

Simple Weapons
Club	1d4 bludgeoning	1kg	Light.
Dagger	1d4 piercing	0,5kg	Light, thrown (20/60)
Rondel dagger	1d4 piercing	0,5kg	light, thrown (20/60), Armor Piercing
Greatclub	1d8 bludgeoning	5kg	Two-handed
Handaxe	1d6 slashing	1kg	Light, thrown (20/60ft)
Javelin	1d6 piercing	1kg	Thrown (30/120)
Light hammer	1d4 bludgeoning	1kg	Light, thrown (20/60)
Mace	1d6 bludgeoning	2kg
Quarterstaff	1d6 bludgeoning	2kg	Reach, versatile
Sickle	1d4 slashing	1kg	Light
Spear	1d6 piercing	1,5kg	Reach, thrown (20/60), versatile
Spiked staff	1d6 piercing	1kg	Simple, Reach, Armor

			piercing
Pitchfork	1d6 piercing	1kg	Simple, Reach
Scythe	1d8 slashing	2kg	Two-handed, reach.

Martial Weapons
Battleaxe	1d8 slashing	2kg	Versatile
Poleaxe	1d8 slashing	2kg	Martial, Reach
Morningstar	1d8 piercing	2kg	Martial, Armor piercing
Flail	1d8 bludgeoning	2kg
Glaive	1d10 slashing	3kg	Heavy, reach, two-handed
Greataxe	1d12 slashing	4kg	Heavy, two-handed
Halberd	1d10 slashing	3kg	Heavy, reach, two-handed
Lance	1d10 piercing	3kg	Reach, Armor piercing
Heavy Lance	1d12 piercing	4kg	Reach, Armor Piercing
Bardiche	1d12 slashing	2,5 kg	Martial, Reach, Slashing
Falchion	1d6 slashing	1kg	Martial, Finesse, light
Flanged mace	1d6 bludgeoning	2kg	Martial, Versatile, Armor piercing
Warhammer	1d8 bludgeoning	2kg	Martial, Versatile , Armor piercing
Bastard Sword	1d8 slashing	2kg	Martial, Versatile
Pike	1d10 piercing	6kg	Heavy, reach, two-handed
Rapier	1d8 piercing	1kg	Armor Piercing
Scimitar	1d6 slashing	1,5kg	Light

Shortsword	1d6 piercing	1kg	Light
Trident	1d6 piercing	2kg	Thrown (20/60), Versatile
War Pickaxe	1d8 piercing	1,5kg
Whip	1d4 slashing	1kg	Reach.

Simple ranged weapons
Light crossbow	1d8 piercing	2kg	Loading, two-handed, (80/320)
Shortbow	1d6 piercing	0,5 kg	Light, thrown (80/320)
Sling	1d4 bludgeoning		(30/120)

Martial ranged weapons
Blowgun	1 piercing	1kg	Loading, (25/100)
Handcrossbow	1d6 piercing	1,5kg	Loading, (30/120)
Heavy Crossbow	1d10 piercing	6kg	Loading, heavy, two-handed, (100/400)
Longbow	1d8 piercing	1kg	Heavy, two-handed (150/600)
Net	-	1,5kg	Thrown (range 5/15)

Bolts and arrows
Bolt	1d6 piercing		Ammunition, loading
Steel Bolt	1d8 piercing		Ammunition, loading
Arrow	1d6 piercing		Ammunition
Barbed arrow	1d6 piercing, 1d4 slashing		Ammunition, Barbed

Bodkin arrow	1d6 piercing		Ammunition, Armor piercing
Broadhead arrow	1d8 piercing		Ammunition

Armor

Each character has a base value of 8 armour. This value can be increased by wearing different pieces of armour. A piece of armour has a max value of 3 AC. The maximum pieces of armor a character can wear is five. A full set of armour consists of the following pieces:

1. A helmet
2. Body armour
3. Gauntlets
4. Feet wear

When wearing five pieces of armor with the maximum armor value of 3, your armour class will be 23. In addition, when wearing a shield, your armour class increases with 2. This makes 25 the highest attainable armour class with normal means.

Every piece of armor has different attributes that can negate different types of armor. A set of mail armor may grant some protection against slashing damage, and a set of plate armor will protect you from slash and pierce damage. You may find that some weapons will be more effective against armor. Usually weapons that deal bludgeoning damage fare better against armor, and there are some additional weapons that specialize in piercing armor, such as rondel daggers, flanged maces and heavy lances. In addition, a well placed bodkin arrow may work wonders.

Helmet
Hood	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light, Warm
Padded Coif	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light, Warm
Leather Cap	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light
Skullcap	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light
Mail Coif	+ 2 Armor	2 Kg	Medium, Slash resistance
Nasal Helmet	+ 2 Armor	2 Kg	Medium, Slash/pierce resistance
Kettle Helmet	+ 2 Armor	2 Kg	Medium, Slash/pierce resistance
Bascinet	+ 3 Armor	2 Kg	Heavy, Slash/pierce resistance

Great Helmet	+ 3 Armor	2 Kg	Heavy, Slash/pierce resistance
--------------	-----------	------	--------------------------------

Body armor
Fur Coat	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light, Warm
Tabard	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light
Leather Vest	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light
Gambeson	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light, Warm
Padded Vest	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light, Warm
Padded Leather Vest	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Light, Warm
Mail Shirt	+ 2 Armor	3 Kg	Medium, Slash resistance
Hauberk	+ 2 Armor	3 Kg	Medium, Slash resistance
Mail with overcoat	+ 2 Armor	4 Kg	Medium, Warm, Slash resistance
Scale armor	+ 2 Armor	5 Kg	Medium, Slash/Pierce resistance
Plate Coat	+ 3 Armor	6 Kg	Heavy, Slash/Pierce resistance
Plate Armour	+ 3 Armor	8 Kg	Heavy, Slash/Pierce resistance

Gauntlets
Leather Gloves	+ 1 Armor	0,5 Kg	Light
Fur Gloves	+ 1 Armor	0,5 Kg	Light, Warm
Mail Gauntlets	+ 2 Armor	1 Kg	Medium, Slash

			resistance
Scale Gauntlets	+ 3 Armor	1 Kg	Heavy, Slash/Pierce resistance
Plate Gauntlets	+ 3 Armor	1,5 Kg	Heavy, Slash/Pierce resistance

Footwear
Leather boots	+ 1 Armor	0,5 Kg	Light
Fur boots	+ 1 Armor	0,5 Kg	Light, Warm
Mail Boots	+ 2 Armor	1 Kg	Medium, Slash resistance
Mail Chausses	+ 2 Armor	1 Kg	Medium, Warm, Slash/Pierce resistance
Iron Greaves	+ 2 Armor	1 Kg	Medium, Slash/Pierce resistance
Plate Boots	+ 3 Armor		Heavy, Slash/Pierce resistance

Shields

Shields serve an important role on the battlefield. It can make the difference between life and death. Serving as an extension of your arm, or even as a make-shift battlement to hide behind while loading your crossbow. Most shields are prone to break though when not maintained properly, as they often take a heavy beating.

Shields
Light Wooden Round Shield	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Poor
Hide Covered Round Shield	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Poor, Fire resistance
Steel Buckler Shield	+ 1 Armor	1 Kg	Decent
Heater Shield	+ 2 Armor	2 Kg	Decent

Kite Shield	+ 2 Armor	2 Kg	Decent
Pavise Shield	+ 2 Armor	5 Kg	Good
Hide Covered Pavise Shield	+ 2 Armor	6 Kg	Good, Fire Resistance